WICHITA, KAN. – A man was sentenced after he pled guilty to sexually exploiting a 16 year old Wichita girl. Last Friday, District Court Judge Ben Burgess sentenced Jesse Duckens, 24 of Wichita, to 94 months in prison. In July, Duckens pled guilty to commercial sexual exploitation of a child, sexual exploitation of a child and possession of marijuana.

In November, 2015, the teenage girl's mother found a Facebook conversation on her daughter's phone between her and Duckens. Duckens tried to convince the girl he could post photos of her on a website so she could make money as a prostitute. The mother took the phone to the Exploited and Missing Child Unit where a detective set up a meeting, supposedly between the girl and Duckens. Duckens was arrested by EMCU detectives when he arrived.
