Sedgwick county government's recent Facebook post regarding religion is in direct violation of the constitutional rights of your citizens. You conveniently didn't make a post about Ramadan in the 22nd, but someone in the communications department felt it appropriate to all but endorse Christianity by making a post about palm Sunday.

County employees are free to believe in whatever fairy tales they want, but when it comes to performing job duties on the taxpayers dime, religion need not be mentioned at all. Freedom of religion is also freedom FROM religion, and your communications department needs to train it's employees to understand this.

The above statement is my submittal for public Comment and wish it all to be included in it's entirety. Any abbreviation or edit is in direct violate of my right to seek redress from my government and will be handled accordingly through civil litigation.
