MODELS NEEDED FOR SENIOR EXPO FASHION SHOW

(Sedgwick County, Kan.) – Experience the “Art of Aging” when you help “Portraits Come to Life” – the theme of this year’s Senior Expo Fashion Show. The Sedgwick County Department on Aging is seeking models age 55 and older to participate in the free fashion show at Botanica on Thursday, September 24.

Models will wear their own clothing to portray a person in a famous painting. The fashion show has been a favorite Senior Expo event, which nearly 400 people attended last year.

“The models in the show have such a good time, and it shows when they’re on stage,” said Kimberly Joachims, fashion show coordinator. “It’s a lot of fun to watch and even more fun to participate in.”

Interested persons should contact the Sedgwick County Department on Aging by the end of August to reserve their place in the show. For more information about participating in the fashion show, call 393-8546.
