Introduction

Sedgwick County is dedicated to public programs, activities and services, which are free of discrimination based on disability. Furthermore, Sedgwick County applies this same dedication to all employees, including all aspects of the employment process, such as the pre-employment process, post employment policies, and the benefits pertaining to employment. Sedgwick County has developed this document, including all attachments, to establish in written policy its commitment to nondiscrimination based on disability and to comply fully with the letter and spirit of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

This Document was developed by Sedgwick County in consultation with the County’s 504/ADA Coordinator; the Disability Management Consulting Group, d.b.a., ADA Accrediting & Consulting; and the Wichita/Sedgwick County Access Advisory Board (WSCAAB). WSCAAB has examined the entirety of this document, including attachments, and provided recommendations pertaining to its language and implementation. All Advisory Board recommendations have been incorporated into the content of this document.

This County Self-Evaluation and attachments are made public to those interested and serves as the Self-Evaluation for Sedgwick County as defined by Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, and disability nondiscrimination requirements for recipients of CDBG funds, including federal funds provided by other federal, state or local funding agencies. A copy of this Self-Evaluation is available for viewing at the ADA Coordinator’s Office – Ms. Lindsey Mahoney, located in the Old County Courthouse, at 510 N. The following public information terminals are available within the courthouse complex (below):
These are typically available for public lookup of specific information related to the department in which they are located (mainly tax/appraisal). There was previously an informational kiosk available at the lobby information desk for general “where-to go” questions, but it is my understanding this terminal is no longer in place.

Employment: Sedgwick County does not discriminate on the basis of disability in its hiring or employment practices and complies with all regulations promulgated by the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under title I of the ADA.

Effective Communication: Sedgwick County will generally, upon request, provide appropriate aids and services leading to effective communication for qualified persons with disabilities so they can participate equally in Sedgwick County’s programs, services, and activities, including qualified sign language interpreters, documents in Braille, and other ways of making information and communications accessible to people who have speech, hearing, or vision impairments.
Modifications to Policies and Procedures: Sedgwick County will make all reasonable modifications to policies and programs to ensure that people with disabilities have an equal opportunity to enjoy all of its programs, services, and activities. For example, individuals with service animals are welcomed in Sedgwick County offices, even where pets are generally prohibited.

The ADA does not require Sedgwick County to take any action that would fundamentally alter the nature of its programs or services, or impose an undue financial or administrative burden. Complaints that a program, service, or activity of Sedgwick County is not accessible to persons with disabilities should be directed to the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator, and may be filed using Sedgwick County’s ADA Grievance Procedure.

ADA/504 General Information

Federal and state laws prohibit discrimination based on disability. Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended (504), and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA) require that Sedgwick County and all organizations or firms contracting with Sedgwick County, except those providing tangible goods, comply with ADA/504 accessibility requirements.

Contractor Assurance of Compliance

1) GENERAL PROVISION

As a funding recipient from Sedgwick County, I understand that federal and state laws prohibit discrimination by Public Entities in program, services, and employment based solely on disability. In addition, I recognize that Section 504 requires recipients of federal funds (either directly or through contracting with a local governmental entity receiving federal funds) to make their programs, services, and activities, when viewed in their entirety, accessible to qualified and/or eligible people with disabilities. I agree to comply with, and to require that all subcontractors comply with, ADA/504 requirements. I understand that Reasonable Accommodation is required in both program services and employment, except where to do so would cause an undue hardship or undue burden.

2) PROGRAM AND SERVICE PROVIDERS

As a vendor providing services to the public on the behalf of Sedgwick County, I agree that all personnel in my employment that have direct contact with the public will attend ADA Awareness and Sensitivity training provided by Sedgwick County or the Independent Living Resource Living Center. Evidence of training shall be provided to the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator listed below.

I agree that any violation of the specific provisions of the ADA or 504 that are applicable to my organization or service my organization performs under this contract on Sedgwick County’s behalf shall be deemed a breach of the material provision of my Contract between Sedgwick County and my organization. Such a breach shall be grounds for cancellation, termination, or suspension, in whole or in part, of my organization’s Contract by Sedgwick County. I further agree that my organization is entirely responsible for full compliance.

3) CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE PROVIDERS

As a contractor performing new construction, maintenance, alterations, or additions to Sedgwick County buildings or facilities, my organization, or subcontractors to my organization, must comply with all county, state, and federal laws, including related building guidelines/codes, and specifically the Americans with Disabilities Accessibility Guidelines (ADAAG). I agree that any violation of the specific provisions of the ADA or 504, which are applicable to my organization or work my organization is currently performing under this contract at Sedgwick County buildings or facilities, shall be deemed a breach of the material provision of my Contract between Sedgwick County and my organization. Failure to immediately notify the Architect, Project Manager, or the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator and remedy such a breach shall be grounds for cancellation, termination, or suspension, in whole or in part, of my organization’s Contract by Sedgwick County. I further agree that my organization is entirely responsible for full compliance with any and all applicable structural accessibility guidelines, which pertain to the work my organization performs for Sedgwick County.

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) requires reasonable accommodation in the hiring process, and the language of the ADA includes "appropriate adjustment or modifications of examination" as a form of accommodation. It is the goal of this article to acquaint employers with the legal requirements and measurement issues that must be considered in using selection tests under the ADA.

There are three types of information that must be considered in using selection tests under the ADA. First, employers must be familiar with the legal requirements of the ADA and the rationale behind these requirements. Second, employers should be aware of the specific role of their tests in helping to select qualified employees (in other words, the validity basis for their tests). Third, employers should be familiar with the types of accommodations that are most likely to be effective in preserving the reliability and validity of the test for people with various disabilities.

Legal and Regulatory Requirements

Under the ADA, it is discriminatory to use selection criteria that screen out or tend to screen out individuals with disabilities unless the criteria are shown to be job-related for the position in question and are consistent with business necessity. This is to ensure that tests do not act as barriers to the employment of persons with disabilities unless the person is unable to do the job, even with reasonable accommodation.

Employers should design selection criteria for jobs to ensure a close fit between the selection criteria and an individual’s ability to do the job. A criterion that tends to screen out an individual with a disability must be shown to be job-related for the position and consistent with business necessity. To be consistent with business necessity a criterion must be related to an essential job function. The obligation to make reasonable accommodation means that an employer must make modifications or adjustments to the application process that would enable a qualified individual with a disability to be considered for the position he or she desires.

Tests should not be given in formats that require use of the impaired skill, unless it is a job-related skill that the test is intended to measure. For example, it is unlawful to give a written test to a person who is unable to read because of dyslexia, unless the ability to read is the job-related skill that the test is designed to measure. If, instead, the test is designed to measure a factor such as verbal comprehension or reasoning, the test should be given orally. Similarly, test time limits should be relaxed for applicants whose disabilities cause them to need more time to take a test, unless the test is specifically designed to test speed. However, the results of a test of speed could not be used to exclude an individual with a disability unless the skill was necessary to perform an essential function of the position that could not be performed by the individual with or without reasonable accommodation. If speed is necessary to perform an essential job function and there is no reasonable accommodation available to enable the applicant to demonstrate the skill or to perform the job, then the employer is not required to employ the individual.

An employer is obligated to make reasonable accommodation only to the physical or mental limitations that result from the disability of a qualified individual with a disability, that are known to the employer. While an employer may inquire whether an employee is having difficulty performing his or her job, it is generally the responsibility of the employee to inform the employer that accommodation for a disability is needed.

Similarly, an employer is generally required to provide testing accommodations only if it knows in advance that an applicant has a disability that requires such accommodations. Usually, it is the responsibility of the individual with a disability to request any accommodation for a test. The employer can be helpful by informing applicants in advance about any tests to be administered as part of the application process, so that they may request an accommodation, if needed.

Employers may also ask applicants whether they will need an accommodation for the hiring process.

It should be noted that the ADA and the Title I regulations prohibit pre-employment inquiry into a person's disability or the nature of the disability, with one narrow exception. The ADA permits employers to ask individuals with a hidden disability who request accommodations at the application stage to provide reasonable documentation to verify the disability and the need for accommodation. However, the employer may not make further inquiries as to the nature or severity of the disability. For this reason, employers can use psychological tests at the pre-offer state of the hiring process only if these tests are not medical—that is to say, only if the tests do not provide evidence that would lead to identifying a mental disorder.

Test Validity Models

The use of tests for making employment decisions is supported by evidence of the tests' validity under one or more of the following models:

- Content validity: the test is a representative sample of performance in some defined area of job-related knowledge, skill, ability, or other characteristic.
- Construct validity: the test is demonstrated to be a measure of a job-relevant characteristic (e.g., reasoning ability).
- Criterion-related validity: the test is shown to be statistically related to some criterion of successful job performance.

Test accommodations should be made so as to retain the validity of the test for selecting qualified employees.

Types of Testing Accommodations

Testing accommodations will be discussed under three broad categories: testing formats, time limits, and test content.

Testing format. A change in testing format refers to the use of a different medium or method to present the same information. Test information is usually presented in print in the English language. Therefore, Braille, large print, reader, and audiotape are simply different ways of presenting the same information. In most cases, these formats could be interchanged without a change in the question content or the ability being tested. However, several problems exist in the use of different formats:

1. Long reading passages may be more difficult when presented orally or in other formats for visually impaired applicants. For oral presentation, the test-taker must try to keep the entire passage in memory. In Braille or large print, scanning through the passage is slower than it is with regular print.
2. Figural material is problematic for people with visual impairments. The embossing of figural material should not be viewed as a simple format change, because the tactile sense is quite different from the visual sense.
3. When readers are used, they should be people who read well and articulate clearly, and they should practice reading the test in advance. They should be warned against inadvertently giving clues to the test-taker when they read.

It should be noted that changing a test from a printed version into a sign language version is a translation into another language, rather than simply a change of format. It must be done with all of the care that would be taken in translating a test from English into, say, Japanese.
Time limits. In most cases of accommodated testing it is necessary to change the test's time limits. Often the change in time limits causes a problem in interpreting test results. This problem arises because of the use of "speeded power" tests. In order to understand this problem, it is necessary to learn a bit of testing terminology.

A pure power test is a test in which everyone has an opportunity to attempt to answer every question, and the scores are based on how many questions people can answer rather than on how fast they can work. The pure speed test, on the other hand, contains questions of trivial difficulty given a very short time limit. Scores are based only on how fast people can work. Many tests that are intended to be power tests are actually somewhat speeded because a considerable number of people are unable to attempt every question. On a speeded power test, a person who had unlimited time would have an advantage over people who took the test with the regular time limit. However, since many people with disabilities, e.g., severely vision impaired or deaf users, need extra time to take tests, there is the difficult problem of determining exactly how much extra time should be allotted so that the test-taker with a disability is at neither an advantage nor a disadvantage.

The ideal solution to this problem would be to eliminate the use of speeded power tests. If a power test has a liberal time limit, with a completion rate of, say, ninety-five percent of all test-takers, then test-takers with disabilities can be given unlimited time without having an undue advantage. The difficult question of how much extra time to allow would no longer need to be answered.

In the case of existing speed power tests in which the regular time limits cannot be changed, unlimited time may be inappropriate. One method of determining appropriate time limits is to conduct empirical studies. The U.S. Office of Personnel Management conducted a study to set time limits for visually impaired and deaf applicants on one of its large volume examinations. It was found that at least double time was needed for visually impaired users of all media to answer questions that consisted of a short reading passage followed by five answer choices. Mathematical questions involving computation required considerably more time than that. Such empirical studies are only possible in large-scale programs in which there are many test-takers.

Pure speed tests are used in the employment context to test such skills as perceptual speed and clerical checking. Such tests are clearly inappropriate for use with visually impaired test-takers because all of the media for transmitting information are slower, and for some physically impaired applicants, because the physical mechanism for responding (e.g., marking the answer sheet) is slower. The time limit cannot be adjusted on these tests because speed is the factor that is being tested. Therefore, the test user must decide if the speed test should be used with the regular time limit (which is permissible, as noted in the earlier section on legal and regulatory requirements, if the speed factor is necessary to perform an essential job function and the applicant cannot meet the requirements even with reasonable accommodations) or if the test should be deleted from the battery and possibly replaced with another type of assessment. This would be an instance of the last type of test accommodation—change of test content.

Test content. In the context of competitive testing for persons with disabilities, changes in test content are not made frequently. However, it is clear that this type of change is a form of accommodation that may be required for compliance with the ADA. Any change in test content would need to be consistent with the validity strategy on which the test was based. For example, substituting one test question for another is easily done under a construct validity model, but might be troublesome under a content validity model.

Changes in test content can be divided for convenience into three types: change in individual test questions, change in the question-type, and change or deletion of a knowledge, skill, or ability (KSA) that is being measured. The first type of change, as mentioned above, is easily done in a construct-valid test. The second type of change—using a different type of question to test the same ability—is feasible if another question-type exists and if scoring comparability can be determined.

The interpretive guidance to the EEOC's Title I ADA regulations describes some bold substitutions of methods for measuring the same KSA, as the following excerpt shows:

"Where it is not possible to test in an alternative format, the employer may be required, as a reasonable accommodation, to evaluate the skill to be tested in another manner (e.g., through an interview, through educational, license, or work experience requirements)."

This excerpt does not reflect a concern for score comparability. In fact, it is difficult to see how this approach could be used if applicants needed to be rank-ordered on the basis of quantitative scores.

If there is no effective way to test a person with a disability for a certain KSA, and if there is reason to believe that this KSA will not be required on the job by the person, the requirement for measuring this KSA should be changed or deleted.

Accommodations for Specific Disabilities

The following is a brief listing of the types of testing accommodations that are appropriate for test-takers with different disabilities.

For test-takers with visual impairments, tests must be presented in appropriate formats, such as braille, large print, and audiotape. Time limits must be extended for all of these media, and speed tests are inappropriate. With the context of changing test materials into different formats, certain of test material may be problematic, as noted earlier. In addition, the test-taker will probably need accommodation or assistance in marking answers.

For test-takers who have physical impairments that affect use of the hands, the principal test accommodation is the adjustment of test time limits and the avoidance of speed tests. In addition, accessible test sites, the assistance of a test administrator in turning pages and marking answers, and extra rest breaks may be required.

Among hearing impaired test-takers, only those who are deaf need extensive testing accommodations. For the majority of predominantly deaf persons, that is, persons who lost their hearing before acquiring speech, verbal tests are not good measures of any ability. For most profoundly deaf people, English is a second language and the native language is sign language. (Of course, there are exceptions to this rule; some profoundly deaf people have very good English skills.) Therefore, as a general rule, verbal tests cannot be used effectively with most deaf test-takers to test anything except verbal ability. Tests that are completely nonverbal, however, do not pose a problem. Test instructions should be given very carefully, with the use of sign language or demonstration, and time limits should be explained clearly. Extra time should be allowed on power tests that include verbal material.

Individuals with specific learning disabilities now constitute the largest group that requires testing accommodations. The specific tasks that are affected by learning disabilities vary widely, so it is difficult to generalize about testing accommodations. Accommodations will need to be arranged on a case-by-case basis for applicants with specific learning disabilities. The most frequently used accommodations are the allowance of additional time for power tests and reconsideration of speed tests in areas of specific weakness. For example, a test-taker who had a specific learning disability that affected numerical computation might be screened out by a speeded test of computation. Under the ADA, it would be inappropriate to use that test unless it tested an essential job function that the test-taker could not perform with or without reasonable accommodation.

Attachment 5 – Recommendations for Modifications to Employment Policies

ADA Consultant Recommendations for Modifications to Sedgwick County’s Employment Policies and Practices

Special Considerations: The following information does not indicate that discrimination has occurred. Additionally, the following does not indicate that existing employment policies are discriminatory or even inappropriate. The following recommendations have been provided only for the purpose of helping to ensure that policies are clear and discrimination does not occur in the future based on misunderstood information.

a. Leave Benefits, Policy #4.701: Existing Section II(N) states, “Employees who are off work because of illness, injury or disability for five (5) continuous months, exclusive of FLMA leave, may be terminated at the discretion of the hiring authority.” According to Title I regulations (29CFR1630.4), discrimination based on disability is prohibited in regard to, among other things, “leaves of absence, sick leave, or any other leave.” In addition, Section 1630.2(o) states that numerous types of reasonable accommodation may need to be required in order to avoid discrimination, including, “Permitting the use accrued paid leave or providing additional unpaid leave.” It should be noted that, such a leave policy (termination after five continuous months of leave) may or may not be discriminatory depending on how such policy is applied given the particular circumstances of an individual employee with a disability.

   Language Change Recommendation: In order to avoid supervisory or HR misunderstandings, we recommend modifying the language of this section as follows: “Employees who are off work because of illness, injury or disability for five (5) continuous months, exclusive of FLMA leave, may be terminated at the discretion of the hiring authority. Note: Special considerations, including reasonable accommodation, may be necessary before terminating, or taking any other disciplinary action in relation to an employee defined as an employee with a disability. For more extensive information pertaining to employees with disabilities or reasonable accommodation see ADA Reasonable Accommodation, Policy #4.1100.”

b. Equal Employment Opportunity, Policy #4.300: Section II(A) states, “It shall be the Policy of Sedgwick County, through responsible recruitment, that Division Directors, Department Heads, Elected Officials, and Supervisors hire individuals; train, promote, transfer, compensate, terminate, layoff, and provide benefits and other conditions of employment to employees; without regard to race, color, national origin, sex, age, religious or political affiliations, disability or status as a disabled or Vietnam-era veteran; except when consideration of these factors is based upon a bona-fide occupational qualification.”

According to the language of this statement, it is the policy of Sedgwick County to apply all employment policies and/or practices to employees “without regard to” disability. Although, it may typically be appropriate to apply employment policies and practices to all employees, even if they are considered part of a protected class, such a policy may not be appropriate or possibly a violation of Title I when applied to employees or potential employees with disabilities. Title I specifically requires non-discrimination based on disability and requires that covered employers consider and possibly provide reasonable accommodation where necessary to avoid discrimination. In other words, Title I establishes that covered employers may be required to provide greater than equal treatment specifically to employees or potential employees with disabilities. The Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibits any consideration of personal characteristics such as race or national origin, Title I of the ADA necessarily takes a different approach. When an individual’s disability creates a barrier to employment opportunities, Title I requires employers to consider whether or not reasonable accommodation could remove the barrier. Title I thus establishes some types of employer treatment and/or actions beyond equality specifically pertaining to individuals with disabilities.

In addition to the above discrepancy, Section II(A) generally states that equality of treatment will be provided to protected classes “except when consideration of these factors is based upon a bona-fide occupational qualification.” Once again, Title I differs from the general nondiscrimination language implementing the Civil Rights Act of 1964. According to the Civil Rights Act of 1964, under certain circumstances, employers may discriminate due to sex, age and possibly other protected classifications if doing so is a “bona-fide occupational qualification.” However, once again, the regulations implementing Title I differ from the Civil Rights Act, and does not allow bona-fide occupational qualifying factors to be considered in regard to recruitment, promotion, transfer, compensation, termination, or various other employment policies or practices, pertaining to disability, with one exception. Title I does allow covered employers to establish a “bona-fide” benefit plan based on certain variables. But, Title I does not allow bona-fide distinctions to be made regarding other aspects of employment because, essentially the reasonable accommodation requirements may over-ride any bona-fide distinction based on disability.

In summary, lumping disability into the same categories and treatment of other protected classes under the Civil Rights Act, may be unacceptable because Title I regulations deviate dramatically from many of the provisions applied to other protected classes.

Language Change Recommendation: In order to avoid supervisory or HR misunderstandings, we recommend modifying the language of this section as follows: “It shall be the Policy of Sedgwick County, ………; except when consideration of these factors is based upon a bona-fide occupational qualification or where ADA Title I regulations require differential treatment, such as is defined in ADA Reasonable Accommodation, Policy #4.1100, in order to avoid discrimination based on disability.”

c. Employee Conduct and Relations Standards, Policy #4.502: Among other issues, Policy (#4.502) establishes an internal grievance procedure, which can be utilized by some employees. In Section II(A) of this Policy, unclassified employees are not allowed to utilize the existing grievance procedure. Sedgwick County makes clear however, in Section II(B) that if an employee has a grievance related to disability, the grievance procedure is available to this employee regardless of classification. Although, Section II(C) states, “policies and practices relating to grievances do not apply to employees of the Sedgwick County Sheriff’s Department, who are part of a recognized Civil Service system, or employees of the Sedgwick County Fire Department, who are represented by a bargaining unit subject to a Memorandum of Agreement. Section II(C), which makes no distinction of classified or unclassified, may contradict the Title I requirement to provide an internal grievance process for all qualified employees with disabilities, regardless of any contractual agreements the County may have made with other organizations. For example, Title I Regulations Section 1630.6 states, “It is unlawful for a covered entity to participate in a contractual or other arrangement or relationship that has the effect of subjecting the covered entity’s own qualified applicant or employee with a disability to the discrimination prohibited by this part.” In addition part (b) of this Regulatory Section states, “The phrase contractual or other arrangement or relationship includes, but is not limited to, a relationship with and employment or referral agency; labor union, including collective bargaining agreements; and organizations providing fringe benefits to an employee or the covered entity; or an organization providing training and apprenticeship programs.

Section II(D) of Sedgwick County’s Policy #4.502 states, “The Sedgwick County grievance process will not be used to effect changes in Policies or Rules, such as hours of employment, rates of compensation or the content or merit of County Personnel Policies and Procedures.” Once again, this particular policy may contradict Title I regulations Section 1630.9, which specifically states it is unlawful for a covered entity not to make reasonable accommodations to the known physical or mental limitations of an otherwise qualified applicant or employee with a disability, unless such covered entity can demonstrate that the accommodation would impose an undue hardship on the operation of its business. Reasonable accommodations are specifically required to be made regarding “all” employment policies or practices, including hours of employment, rates of compensation, including the content of personnel policies and procedures, where modifications of such are necessary so that an individual with a disability can perform the essential functions of a particular job.

Language Change Recommendation: In order to avoid supervisory or HR misunderstandings, we recommend modifying the language of these sections by adding the following statement to each identified section: It should be understood that reasonable accommodation, as defined in ADA Reasonable Accommodation, Policy #4.1100, will be provided to qualified employees or potential employees with disabilities when and where it is necessary to avoid discrimination based on disability and ensure an equal employment opportunity.

REASONABLE ACCOMMODATION POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

CHAPTER: Equal Employment Opportunity Policy

SUBJECT: ADA Reasonable Accommodation

POLICY NUMBER: 4.311  PAGES: 6

I. Purpose

The purpose of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) Reasonable Accommodation Policy is to provide policy and procedures to ensure equal and effective opportunities for persons with disabilities and full compliance with the employment provisions of Titles I and II of the ADA.

II. Policy

Sedgwick County is committed to providing equal access and opportunity to qualified persons with disabilities in all terms and conditions of employment and in all County programs and services. Sedgwick County recognizes that in order to have equally effective employment opportunities and benefits, individuals with disabilities may need Reasonable Accommodation to policies and procedures. Sedgwick County will adhere to all applicable federal and state laws, regulations and guidelines with respect to providing Reasonable Accommodation, as necessary, to afford equal employment opportunity and equal access to programs, services, and benefits for qualified persons with disabilities. Questions regarding Reasonable Accommodation and/or discrimination on the basis of disability should be directed to the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator. Contact information for the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator can be found on the County web site or by calling the Human Resources Department.
Definitions

Disability with Respect to an Individual Means:

A physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities;
A record of having such an impairment; or Being regarded as having such impairment.

In addition, an individual may not be discriminated against due to association with a person who has, has a record of, or is regarded as having a disability.

A Qualified Person with a Disability is a person who satisfies the requisite skills, experience and other job-related requirements of the position and who, with or without Reasonable Accommodation, can perform the essential functions of the job.

Essential Functions are job duties that are fundamental to the position, not marginal to the position. Duties are what must be accomplished, not how the duties are performed. Essential functions are those job duties that are so fundamental to the position that the individual cannot do the job without being able to perform them. A function can be "essential" if, among other things, the position exists specifically to perform that function, there are a limited number of other employees who could perform the function if it were assigned to them, or the function is specialized and the incumbent is hired based on his/her ability to perform it.

Reasonable Accommodation means modifications or adjustments to a job application process that enable a qualified person with a disability to be considered for a position he or she desires OR modifications or adjustments to the job, work environment, or the way in which work is customarily performed that permit a qualified employee with a disability to perform the essential functions of the job or enjoy the benefits and privileges of employment equal to those of employees without disabilities.

Undue hardship means that a specific accommodation would require significant difficulty or expense. This determination, which must be made on a case-by-case basis, considers factors such as the nature and cost of the accommodation needed and the impact of the accommodation on the operations of the agency.

Sedgwick County Internal Compliance Team (SCICT): A six member team consisting of the County ADA Coordinator, Director of HR, Director of Facilities, Employment Manager, Assistant County Counselor and a Finance Department Representative.

III. Procedures

A. Employment Applicant Request for Accommodation:

1. All application materials shall be made available in alternative formats, upon request, according to the needs of a qualified person with a disability. All position announcements shall include the following statement or its equivalent and applicants shall be notified that they can request Reasonable Accommodation for the application, testing and interview process as follows:

a. "Applicants requiring Reasonable Accommodation for the application, pre-employment testing and/or interview process should notify the Human Resources Department or the County ADA Coordinator: (County ADA Coordinator Contact Information Including name, address, phone, Kansas relay number and email address)."

2. Applicant requests for Reasonable Accommodation shall be made to the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator.

3. Upon receiving a request for Reasonable Accommodation, the ADA Coordinator will evaluate the request and determine what, if any, accommodation is appropriate. To ensure that all effective accommodations have been considered, the ADA Coordinator will talk to the individual requesting the accommodation where the specific limitation, problem, or barrier is unclear; where an effective accommodation is not obvious; or where the parties are choosing between different possible reasonable accommodations.

4. The ADA Coordinator may request medical documentation of the applicant's disability if the disability and/or the need for accommodation is not obvious. Documentation of an applicant's disability is CONFIDENTIAL and will not be shared with search committee members or decision-makers in the hiring process.

5. If an accommodation is appropriate, the ADA Coordinator will assist Human Resources in arranging the accommodation.

6. If the ADA Coordinator determines that no accommodation is necessary, or if the individual desires an alternative accommodation, the applicant may utilize the ADA Grievance Procedure to appeal the decision as outlined below. In cases where requests for accommodation are not approved, the ADA Coordinator shall inform the applicant in writing of the decision and inform the applicant of the availability to appeal the decision in accordance with the ADA Grievance Procedure.

B. Employment Interview Request for Accommodation:

1. Applicants who have received employment interview offers may make an accommodation request following the procedure outlined below. Employment opportunities will not be denied to anyone because of the need to make Reasonable Accommodation for a person's disability.

2. All applicants shall be notified that they can request an accommodation for a disability for the interview process and the procedure for making an accommodation request.

a. The following paragraph or its equivalent shall be added to any correspondence scheduling an interview:

"It is the policy of Sedgwick County to provide Reasonable Accommodation for qualified persons with disabilities who are employees or applicants for employment. If you need assistance or accommodation to fully participate in the interview process, please contact the County ADA Coordinator,
3. When a request for accommodation is received from an applicant by a person other than the ADA Coordinator, that person shall contact the County ADA Coordinator for assistance, and provide contact information for the applicant.

4. The ADA Coordinator may request documentation of the applicant's disability in accordance with the procedures for current employees outlined below. Documentation of an applicant’s disability is CONFIDENTIAL and will not be shared with search committee members or decision-makers in the hiring process.

5. The ADA Coordinator shall make a decision regarding the request and, if approved, arrange the accommodation. If the request is not approved, the ADA Coordinator shall inform the applicant in writing of the decision and inform the applicant of the availability to appeal the decision in accordance with the ADA Grievance Procedure.

C. Selected Applicant Request for Reasonable Accommodation:

1. After interviewing all applicants and evaluating all relevant, non-medical information, the hiring authority or designee makes a conditional offer of employment to the applicant who is determined to best match the needs of the position. If necessary, the selected applicant may request Reasonable Accommodation to perform the essential functions of the job.

2. When the disability and/or the need for accommodation is not obvious, the ADA Coordinator may request medical documentation concerning the individual’s status as a person with a disability and his or her functional limitations to verify the need for accommodation.

3. The ADA Coordinator will review the medical documentation to determine whether or not the person has a disability that qualifies under the ADA.

   a. In rare instances when the ADA Coordinator is unable to make a decision without other professional or technical assistance, the ADA Coordinator may consult the SCICT; or other individuals, such as County determined doctors; technical personnel, such as employment job rehabilitation personnel; or legal professionals.

4. The ADA Coordinator, in consultation with the selected applicant, hiring authority or designee, County Counselor, and Human Resources shall:

   a. Ensure that the applicant is qualified to perform the essential functions of the job with or without reasonable accommodation.

   b. Review to determine if the accommodation shall enable the individual to perform the essential functions of the job by:

      a. Obtaining relevant job and task information through a job analysis;

      b. Determining if job duty or function is essential by review of analysis;
c. Exploring job modification alternatives by consulting with the individual;
d. Identifying barriers to job performance and assessing how accommodation could overcome those barriers;
e. Determining the most effective modification or adjustment for the individual.

c. Determine whether the Reasonable Accommodation would pose an undue hardship for the employer considering the nature and cost of the accommodation and the financial resources available.

d. The hiring authority or designee in consultation with the ADA Coordinator, County Counselor, and Human Resources shall consider the reasonableness of the proposed accommodation. The ADA Coordinator shall serve as the contact person for all parties.

e. If approved, implement the most effective accommodation giving due consideration to the preferences of the individual, or notify the individual that the requested accommodation is not reasonable. While the individual’s preferences will be given consideration, Sedgwick County is free to choose among equally effective accommodations.

f. The individual may accept or reject the decision and/or the specific accommodations proposed. The individual may offer additional information and/or may propose alternative accommodations.

g. The ADA Coordinator may consult with appropriate staff, managers, or technical specialists to decide if the proposed alternative is feasible or would cause an undue hardship for the employer.

h. The selected applicant, supervisor/manager, hiring authority or designee, County ADA Coordinator, County Counselor, and Human Resources shall complete and sign a Reasonable Accommodation agreement detailing the accommodation to be provided. The employing department shall implement the agreed-upon accommodation.

i. The individual may disagree with the decision or reject the accommodation offered and may utilize the ADA Grievance Procedure to appeal the decision. However, if the individual cannot perform the essential functions of the job as a result of the rejection, the individual shall not be considered a qualified individual with a disability.

j. Temporary conditions may be covered as disabilities depending on the duration and impact of the impairment and the extent it limits major life activities and shall be treated on a case-by-case basis.

D. Current Employee Request for Accommodation:

1. An employee who believes they need a Reasonable Accommodation to enable them to perform the essential functions of their job shall inform their supervisor, or the County ADA Coordinator, of the need for an accommodation. When employee requests for accommodation are made to the supervisor, the supervisor shall contact the County ADA Coordinator for assistance.

2. The employee will meet with the County ADA Coordinator who will explain the Reasonable Accommodation process and may request appropriate medical documentation if the disability and/or the need for accommodation is not obvious.

3. The County ADA Coordinator may request and evaluate information from the employee’s medical professional to determine the existence of disability. Requests will include job-related limitation(s) created by the employee’s disability. Medical records of the employee’s condition shall be kept confidential in a locked file separate from the employee’s personnel record. Limitations as a result of the condition will be provided to the employee’s supervisor.

   a. In rare instances when the ADA Coordinator is unable to make a decision without other professional or technical assistance, the ADA Coordinator may consult the SCICT; or other individuals, such as County determined doctors; technical personnel, such as employment job rehabilitation personnel; or legal professionals.

4. The County ADA Coordinator, in consultation with the employee, employee’s supervisor, hiring authority or designee, County Counselor, and Human Resources, shall:

   a. Discuss the purpose and essential functions of the particular job involved. Completion of a step-by-step job analysis may be necessary;

   b. Identify the potential accommodation(s) and assess the effectiveness of each in enabling the employee to perform the essential functions of the job; and,

   c. Recommend the accommodation(s) that is most appropriate for both the individual and the employer. While the individual’s preference will be given consideration, Sedgwick County is free to choose among equally effective accommodations.

5. To ensure that all effective accommodations have been considered, the County ADA Coordinator shall talk to the individual requesting the accommodation where the specific limitation, problem, or barrier is unclear; where an effective accommodation is not obvious; or where the parties are choosing between different possible reasonable accommodations. The Reasonable Accommodation procedure is intended to be an interactive process, with the involvement of the employee requesting the accommodation.

5. The employee, employee’s supervisor/manager, hiring authority or designee, County ADA Coordinator, County Counselor, and Human Resources shall complete and sign a Reasonable Accommodation agreement detailing the accommodation to be provided. The employing department shall implement the agreed-upon accommodation.

6. If an employee who requested an accommodation disagrees with the recommended accommodation, he/she may utilize the ADA Grievance Procedure to appeal the decision as outlined below as outlined below.
7. After an accommodation is provided, the County ADA Coordinator will schedule a follow-up meeting to evaluate the effectiveness of the accommodation.

8. If at any time there is a question about the continuing nature of an employee’s Reasonable Accommodation, the employee or the employee’s supervisor shall contact the County ADA Coordinator.

9. Temporary conditions may be covered as disabilities depending on the duration and impact of the impairment and the extent it limits major life activities and shall be treated on a case-by-case basis.

E. Medical Documentation:

1. Medical documentation may be requested by the ADA Coordinator only when the disability is not obvious, or restrictions must be defined. Information from the employee’s medical practitioner may be necessary to document the employee’s job-related limitation(s) and to assist in determining an effective Reasonable Accommodation for the employee. The County ADA Coordinator will make all requests for medical documentation. The employee requesting an accommodation is responsible for providing the medical documentation requested. When additional information is needed, the County ADA Coordinator will request permission from the employee to contact their medical practitioner. Supervisors and managers may not request information about the employee’s disability or have access to the employee’s medical information.

2. If the County ADA Coordinator finds the documentation insufficient to provide an accommodation, the County ADA Coordinator will explain why the documentation is insufficient and request more complete information from the employee and directly from the employee's medical practitioner if the employee provides a written release. If the employee still fails to provide sufficient documentation from their health care professional to substantiate that a disability exists and a Reasonable Accommodation is needed, Sedgwick County may refuse to provide the accommodation or require the employee to be examined by an appropriate health care professional of the County's choice and at the County's expense.

3. An employee’s failure to provide necessary documentation where it has been properly requested could result in a denial of Reasonable Accommodation.

F. Employee Parking:

1. When employee parking is made available in County owned or leased parking facilities, each employee with a valid disability placard or tag will be assigned a reserved parking space. Reserved accessible parking is provided to employees with disabilities upon request as part of the Reasonable Accommodation process as defined by the Americans with Disabilities Act. Employees who have valid placards or tags, but do not request Reasonable Accommodation or accessible parking, will not be assigned reserved parking.
2. Reserved spaces will be marked “Reserved,” labeled with the employee’s County parking permit number, and spaces will be accessible to the extent required by a particular employee.

3. The location and configuration of reserved spaces will be determined by the County ADA Coordinator, based first on medical necessity, and then management level and finally seniority.

4. The following designated accessible parking spaces are dedicated for use by the general public only. Therefore, no employee parking will be allowed in the accessible parking provided in these locations:
   a. Main Street, in front of the Main Courthouse
   b. Surface lot east of the Munger building

5. Reserved parking and employee disability identification cards will be reviewed by the County ADA Coordinator annually.

6. Violation of this policy may result in disciplinary action pursuant to Sedgwick County personnel policies and procedures.

G. Decisions and Grievances:

1. The accommodation decision made by the County ADA Coordinator in consultation with the employee, employee’s supervisor, hiring authority or designee, County Counselor, and Human Resources shall be implemented by the employing department.

2. If the employee requesting an accommodation disagrees with the appropriateness of the accommodation determined, a request may be made to the County ADA Coordinator for reconsideration or consideration of an alternate accommodation. The Reasonable Accommodation procedure is intended to be an interactive process, with the involvement of the employee requesting accommodation.

3. The County ADA Coordinator shall make a determination regarding this appeal within 10 working days of the request and notify the employee, employee’s supervisor/manager, hiring authority or designee, County Counselor, and Human Resources of that decision. If the 10-day requirement cannot be met, the employee, Human Resources and the County ADA Coordinator shall agree on a reasonable time limit.

4. If the employee who requested the accommodation disagrees with the final determination, the employee may utilize the ADA Grievance Procedure to appeal the decision to the Sedgwick County Manager.

5. The employee may refuse an offered accommodation; employees cannot be forced to accept a particular accommodation. However, the employee continues to be responsible for performing the essential functions of his/her job with or without an accommodation and maintaining defined performance standards.

6. If the Hiring authority disagrees with the appropriateness of the accommodation determined, appeals may be made to the County Manager.
H. Dissemination of Reasonable Accommodation Procedures

1. Copies of the Reasonable Accommodation policy shall be readily available to all County employees. The policy shall be posted on the County's E-line intranet service. It will also be available in designated locations, including the Human Resources Department and the ADA Coordinator’s office.

2. The County’s Reasonable Accommodation policy shall be accessible to individuals with disabilities. Copies of the Reasonable Accommodation Policy will be made available in alternative formats, such as large print or Braille, on request. Individuals requiring alternative formats shall contact the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator. Contact information for the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator can be found on the County web site or by calling the Human Resources Department.
Health Benefit Plans and the Americans with Disabilities Act

What is the Americans with Disabilities Act?

The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA) is a civil rights law for individuals who currently have a disability, have a record of disability, or are regarded as having a disability. The ADA protects against disability-based discrimination in employment, governmental and commercial activities, transportation, and telecommunications.

What disabilities are covered by the ADA?

For purposes of the ADA, a disability is a physical or mental impairment—such as a visual, hearing or mobility impairment, HIV disease, or mental retardation—that substantially limits one or more major life activities. The Supreme Court has clarified that an impairment substantially limits the major life activity of working if an individual is unable, or is regarded as being unable, to perform a broad class of jobs. The Supreme Court also has found that reproduction is a major life activity under the ADA. HIV infection is a disability from the onset of infection, before any symptoms appear.

How does the ADA apply to employment?

Employers covered by the ADA may not discriminate against “a qualified individual with a disability,”--that is, an individual with a disability who meets the necessary prerequisites for a job and can perform the essential job functions with (or without) reasonable accommodation. ADA Title I applies to employers, including employment agencies, labor unions, and joint labor-management committees--with at least fifteen employees. Title I prohibits both purposeful discrimination in employment and practices with discriminatory impact related to job application procedures, hiring, advancement, discharge, compensation, training, and to other terms, conditions and privileges of employment. Criteria that have the effect of excluding individuals with disabilities from employment opportunities may not be used unless the criteria are job-related and are justified by business necessity.
necessity. Title I also establishes the obligation for a covered entity to reasonably accommodate a qualified individual with a disability, except in the case of undue hardship.

May health benefit costs influence employment decisions?

No. Personnel decisions regarding an individual with a disability may not take account of whether, or to what extent, the individual is or would be covered under a health benefit plan. Employers may not fire or refuse to hire a qualified applicant who has a disability, or who has a dependent with a disability, in order to avoid potential increases in health insurance costs.

Does the ADA apply to Health Benefit Plans?

Yes. In its 1993 Interim Enforcement Guidance, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) described how the ADA applies to health benefit plans.

First, the ADA requires employers to provide all employees -- with a disability or without a disability -- the same health insurance benefits. Thus, an employer may not participate in a discriminatory contracted or other arrangement with an organization providing fringe benefits to employees. However, eligibility for health benefits need not be extended to employees with disabilities if such benefits are not extended to nondisabled employees in similar circumstances, e.g., part-time employees.

What coverage classifications does the ADA permit?

ADA Title V allows bona fide insured or self-insured employee benefit plans to make some health-related distinctions based on risk classifications based on or not inconsistent with state law. However, this “insurance exemption” may not be used as a “subterfuge” to evade the purposes of the ADA. According to the EEOC, health insurance distinctions that are not disability-based do not violate the ADA, even if they have a disproportionate impact on individuals with disabilities.

Thus, employers, insurers and unions generally may apply insurance distinctions that are uniformly applied to all employees, such as applicable limitations and exclusions. For example, employers may offer health insurance that does not cover pre-existing conditions for a period of time specified in the plan, even if such a pre-existing condition exclusion adversely affects employees with disabilities.

The ADA also generally permits facially neutral limitations such as lifetime coverage caps applied to all employees. Further, a health plan may exclude or limit coverage for specific procedures or treatments if they are not exclusively or nearly exclusively applicable to a particular disability. For example, a plan may limit the number of blood transfusions or X-rays that the plan will pay for, even though this may have an adverse effect on individuals with certain disabilities such as hemophilia. Likewise, a plan may limit or deny coverage for all “experimental” drugs and/or treatments for all “elective surgery,” and it may exclude or provide lower levels of coverage for broad categories of conditions that are not drawn along lines of disability. For example, a plan may have lower reimbursement rates for treatment of “mental or nervous conditions” or for “eye care.”

However, all such provisions are allowable under the ADA only if they meet the requirements of applicable state law and are not used as a subterfuge. Health plan terms also must meet the requirements of other applicable federal laws, such as the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act and the Mental Health Parity Act.

What is a “disability-based distinction?”

The EEOC’s enforcement guidance identifies a plan term or provision as disability-based if it singles out a particular disability, a discrete group of disabilities, disability in general (all conditions that substantially limit a major life activity), or a treatment or procedure... used exclusively or nearly exclusively to treat a particular disability.

What justifies a disability-based distinction?
The most reliable way to avoid violating the ADA is to not single out diseases or conditions considered disabilities under the ADA.

However, if the plan does single-out a disability or disabilities, the EEOC 1993 Enforcement Guidance requires the respondent employer (or employer’s insurer, if any), to bear the burden of proof that a disability-based distinction is permitted by (1) showing that the health plan either is a bona fide plan that is consistent with state law or is a bona fide self-funded plan, and (2) proving that the disability-based risk classification is not being used as a subterfuge to evade the purposes of the law. Plan sponsors may use accepted principles of insurance risk classification and current and accurate actuarial data, but not data based on myths, fears, stereotypes or false or outdated assumptions about a disability. Disability-based limitations or exclusions will not be considered to violate the ADA if:

- they are based on legitimate actuarial data, or actual or reasonably anticipated experience, and apply equally to conditions with comparable actuarial data and/or experience; or
- they are necessary because no alternative to a disability-based distinction is available to prevent an “unacceptable” change such as:
  - a drastic increase in premiums, co-payments or deductibles;
  - a drastic alteration in the scope of coverage or level of benefits; or
  - other changes that would make the plan unavailable to a significant number of other employees, or so unattractive that the employer could not compete in recruiting and maintaining qualified workers due to the superiority of health insurance plans offered by other employers in the community, or so unattractive as to result in significant adverse selection.

What is a “subterfuge?”
The EEOC and some courts define “subterfuge” as any disability-based disparate treatment that is not based on actuarial data or the employer’s actual or reasonably anticipated experience relating to the risk involved. This means that any coverage limits or exclusions based on disability must be justified by sound actuarial data or other legitimate business or insurance justification.

For example, a cap on benefits for AIDS-related illnesses that was substantially lower than for other illnesses would be a disability-based distinction. The lower AIDS cap would violate the ADA unless the disability-based distinction can be justified by actuarial data. Studies demonstrating that the cost of AIDS is comparable to the costs of other commonly covered conditions make it unlikely that this type of disparate treatment could be justified.

A plan also may be found to have used the insurance exemption as a subterfuge if it used an AIDS cap to deter people with AIDS from accepting employment or enrolling in the plan.

A few courts have held that plan practices established prior to the ADA’s enactment could not be a subterfuge to evade the purposes of the Act. The EEOC, however, disputes that the ADA provides a “safe harbor” for discriminatory practices that were adopted before the ADA.

How does the ADA apply to dependent coverage?

Disability-based distinctions involving dependent coverage will be analyzed in the same fashion as disability-based distinctions in employee coverage. The ADA, however, does not require that the coverage accorded dependents be the same in scope as the coverage accorded employees. For example, a $100,000 benefit cap for employees but only a $50,000 for dependents, would be permitted.

County of Sedgwick Action Plan for Accessible Websites:

The following action plan is based upon recommendations made by the U.S. Dept. of Justice for local governments that use the internet to provide information about and access to services. The Sedgwick County IT ADA Liaison will ensure that the existing recommendations will be adopted and existing practices will be adjusted to so that the following recommendations are implemented.

1. Establish a policy that your web pages will be accessible and create a process for implementation.

   Recommendations for Policy

   Policy should be independent of personnel. In other words, if an experienced webmaster with expertise in accessible design should leave his position, the policy should still remain intact.

   Policy should receive full support of key administrative officials and implementation of policy should ultimately be the responsibility of key administrative officials.

   Policy should include provisions for training, work-time and resources needed by information technology in order to develop accessible web pages and conduct accessibility checks.

2. Ensure that all new and modified web pages and content are accessible:

   Check the HTML of all new web pages. Make sure that accessible elements are used, including alt tags, long descriptions and captions, as needed.

   If images are used, include photos, graphics, scanned images, or image maps; make sure to include alt tags and/or long descriptions for each.

   If you use online forms and tables, make those elements accessible.
When posting documents on the website, always provide them in HTML or a text-based format (even if you are also providing them in another format, such as Portable Document Format (PDF)).

Recommendations

Accessibility standards should also apply to other code languages used to create web pages such as php or css.

Identify a mechanism to check for accessibility. A list of validity checkers is provided in this report.

If documents cannot be provided in accessible HTML format, text-based format (rich text) may be created from the original document. Information on creating accessible text documents from popular programs such as Microsoft Word is included in this report.

3. Develop a plan for making your existing web content more accessible.

Describe your plan on an accessible web page. Encourage input on improvements, including which pages should be given high priority for change. Let citizens know about the standards or guidelines that are being used. Consider making the more popular web pages a priority.

Recommendation 1—Identify pages to make accessible.

It is generally not feasible or efficient to retrofit an entire site. Especially one as large and complex as Sedgwick County’s. For the purposes of this report, 117 web pages were identified as priority pages based upon the following factors.

A. Page is essential to navigation of the website. The home page and search page are examples of pages necessary to site navigation.

B. Page provides information about or access to a primary County service such as transportation, recreation, utilities, obtaining a business license, etc.

C. Page provides a mechanism such as a form or instructions for reporting a problem such as a water leak or stray animal.

D. Page provides information related to public safety such as locating a fire station and air quality alerts.

E. A review of the number of page views during a given period would be useful in determining the most visited or popular pages, as recommended by the U.S. Dept. of Justice.

F. These pages should be prioritized as the first step for improving web accessibility.
G. This report identifies accessibility errors and provides recommendations to improve accessibility for the listed priority pages.

Recommendation 2—Develop a web page for public viewing that describes the County’s commitment to improving web accessibility and encourages input and feedback from citizens.

4. Ensure that in-house staff and contractors responsible for web page and content development are properly trained.

   Recommendation

   A list of resources that provide information and training about web accessibility and Section 508 guidelines is included in this report. Utilize this information to ensure that existing pertinent personnel are appropriately trained.

5. Provide a way for visitors to request accessible information or services by posting a telephone number or e-mail address on your home page.

   Recommendation

   This is a critical point, as it is difficult to anticipate all accessibility needs by a user population that consists of people with varied disabilities. As stated earlier, it is also initially difficult to make all previously existing pages on a large website accessible. Therefore, a mechanism to provide accessible information and services to people with disabilities should be in place.

   A designated staff member should be responsible for incoming e-mails or phone requests related to accessibility. The telephone number given should be TTY compatible.

   An appropriate response time should be established for alternative services or information to be received. If the designated staff member for accessibility requests needs assistance from another department or personnel to provide information or services, that assistance should be available in a timely fashion.

6. Periodically enlist disability groups to test your pages for ease of use.

   Recommendation

   Enlist the assistance of a disability organization such as a Center for Independent Living to conduct a periodic review of the high priority pages on the site.
Electronic Resources

Although a lab cannot be expected to have specialized equipment for every type of disability on hand, staff should make equipment available that they anticipate will be used and/or is available at relatively low cost. Provide:

- Printed resources that can be reached by a wheelchair user.
- An adjustable table for each type of workstation in your lab.
- Keyguard, wrist rest, and forearm rest.
- Trackball, joystick, or other mouse alternative.
- Signs with high contrast and large print.
- Large print keytop labels, screen enlargement software, and a large monitor.
- Screen reading software and speech synthesizer.
- Headphones and volume adjustment for people who use "reading software".
- Any printed instructions available in large print or Braille.

Once a lab is established or has greater requirements, consider adding:

- Scanner and Optical Character Recognition (OCR) software.
- CCTV
- Braille printer and Braille translation software.
- Word prediction software.
- Alternative keyboards.
- Voice input software.

In addition, develop a procedure to assure a quick response to requests for adaptive technology that you do not currently have available.

Library Staff

Staff should be trained in the use of telecommunication devices for the deaf (TDD/TTY) and adaptive computer technology provided in the library.

Regular refresher courses should be available to help staff keep their skills up-to-date.
Assistive Technology for Computers

The library won’t have special equipment on hand for every type of disability. However, you can have available commonly used assistive technology. Start with a few items at first, and add new technology as patrons request it. Purchasing the following products for computer workstations will get you started.

- At least one adjustable table for each type of workstation in the library can assist patrons with mobility impairments or who use wheelchairs.
- Large print key labels can assist patrons with low vision.

  Software to enlarge screen images can assist patrons with low vision and learning disabilities.

  Large monitors of at least 17 inches can assist patrons with low vision and learning disabilities.

  Patrons with low vision, blindness, and learning disabilities can use a speech output system.

  Braille conversion software and a Braille printer can assist patrons who are blind.

  Trackballs can assist those who have difficulty controlling a mouse.

  Wrist rests and keyguards can assist some patrons with mobility impairments.

UNIVERSAL ACCESS: Electronic Resources in Libraries is a training kit produced by Project Do-It to help library staff and volunteers become more aware of the issues, needs and concerns of people with disabilities in accessing electronic resources. This site includes text and Adobe Acrobat versions of the presentation materials and a web demonstration that can used to illustrate accessible Web design guidelines.

Courtney Deines-Jones' Opening New Worlds of Information: Library Technology and Internet Access for Patrons with Disabilities, a paper presented at the Annual Conference of the Canadian Association for Information Science (1995), offers a wealth of practical options and strategies for libraries that provide access to the Internet and other on-line services.

County ADA Compliance Consultant’s Web/Public Computer Recommended Modifications (Continued)
Part 3 – Supplemental Information
These provisions of the standards provide the requirements that must be followed by Federal agencies when producing web pages. These provisions apply unless doing so would impose an undue burden.

The key to compliance with these provisions is adherence to the provisions. Many agencies have purchased assistive software to test their pages. This will produce a better understanding of how these devices interact with different coding techniques. However, it always should be kept in mind that assistive technologies, such as screen readers, are complex programs and take extensive experience to master. For this reason, a novice user may obtain inaccurate results that can easily lead to frustration and a belief that the page does not comply with the standards. For example, all screen reading programs use special key combinations to read properly coded tables. If the novice user of assistive technology is not aware of these commands, the tables will never read appropriately no matter how well the tables have been formatted. A web site will be in compliance with the 508 standards if it meets paragraphs (a) through (p) of Section 1194.22. Please note that the tips and techniques discussed in the document for complying with particular sections are not necessarily the only ways of providing compliance with 508. In many cases, they are techniques developed by the Board, the Department of Education, and the Department of Justice that have been tested by users with a wide variety of screen reader software. With the evolution of technology, other techniques may become available or even preferable.

(a) A text equivalent for every non-text element shall be provided (e.g., via "alt", "longdesc", or in element content).

What is meant by a text equivalent?

A text equivalent means adding words to represent the purpose of a non-text element. This provision requires that when an image indicates a navigational action such as "move to the next screen" or "go back to the top of the page," the image must be accompanied by actual text that states the purpose of the image. This provision also requires that when an image is used to represent page content, the image must have a text description accompanying it that explains the meaning of the image.

HTML Source Code: <img src="art/logo-green.gif" alt="Access Board Logo">

http://www.access-board.gov/

How much information actually needs to be in the text equivalent?

The text information associated with a non-text element should, when possible, communicate the same information as its associated element. For example, when an image indicates an action, the action must be described in the text. The types of non-text elements requiring actual text descriptions are limited to those elements that provide information required for comprehension of content or those used to facilitate navigation. Web page authors often utilize transparent graphics for spacing. Adding a text description to these elements will produce unnecessary clutter for users of screen readers. For such graphics, an empty ALT attribute is useful.

Example of source code: `<IMG src="transparent.gif" alt="">

What is meant by the term, non-text element?

A non-text element is an image, graphic, audio clip, or other feature that conveys meaning through a picture or sound. Examples include buttons, check boxes, pictures and embedded or streaming audio or video.

HTML Source Code: `<img src="/art/logo-green.gif" alt="Access Board Logo">

http://www.access-board.gov/

How should audio presentations be treated?

This provision requires that when audio presentations are available on a multimedia web page, the audio portion must be captioned. Audio is a non-textual element, so a text equivalent of the audio must be provided if the audio is part of a multimedia presentation. Multimedia includes both audio and video. If the presentation is audio only, a text transcript would meet this requirement.

What are ways of assigning text to elements?

There are several ways of providing textual information so that it can be recognized by assistive technology devices. For instance, the `<IMG>` tag can accept an "alt" attribute that will enable a web designer to include text that describes the picture directly in the `<IMG>` tag.

HTML source code: `<img src="/image/ab_logo1.gif" alt="The Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board emblem—Go to Access Board website”

Link: http://www.section508.gov/

Similarly, the `<APPLET>` tag for Java applets also accepts an "alt" attribute, but it only works for browsers that provide support for Java. Often, users with slower internet connections will turn support for Java applets off. A better alternative for providing textual descriptions is to simply include the alternative text between opening and closing `<APPLET>` or `<OBJECT>` tags. For instance, if a web designer wanted to include an applet called MyCoolApplet in a web page, and also include a description that the applet shows a stock ticker displaying the current price of various stocks, the designer would use the following HTML coding for example:

`<APPLET CODE="MyCoolApplet.class" WIDTH="200", HEIGHT="100”>`

This applet displays current stock prices for many popular stocks.
</APPLET>

Finally, yet another way of providing a textual description is to include it in the page in the surrounding context:

Below is a picture of me during my great vacation!

`<IMG src="pictureofme.jpg”>`

(b) Equivalent alternatives for any multimedia presentation shall be synchronized with the presentation.

What are considered equivalent alternatives?

Captioning for the audio portion and audio description of visual information of multimedia presentations are considered equivalent alternatives. This provision requires that when an audio portion of a multimedia production is captioned, as required in provision (a), the captioning must be synchronized with the audio. Synchronized captioning would be required so someone reading the captions could also watch the speaker and associate relevant body language with the speech.

If a website offers audio files with no video, do they have to be captioned?

No, because it is not multimedia. However, since audio is a non-text element, a text equivalent, such as a transcript, must be available. Similarly, a (silent) web slide show presentation does not need to have an audio description accompanying it, but does require text alternatives to be associated with the graphics.

If a Federal agency official delivers a live audio and video webcast speech, does it need to be captioned?

Yes, this would qualify as a multimedia presentation and would require the speech to be captioned.

National Endowment for the Humanities

National Center for Accessible Media (NCAM)

(c) Web pages shall be designed so that all information conveyed with color is also available without color, for example from text or markup.

Why is this provision necessary?

When colors are used as the sole method for identifying screen elements or controls, persons who are color blind as well as those people who are blind or have low vision may find the web page unusable.

Does this mean that all pages have to be displayed in black and white?

No, this provision does not prohibit the use of color to enhance identification of important features. It does, however, require that some other method of identification, such as text labels, must be combined with the use of color. This provision addresses not only the problem of using color to indicate emphasized text, but also the use of color to indicate an action. For example, a web page that directs a user to "press the green button to start" should also identify the green button in some other fashion than simply by color.
Is there any way a page can be quickly checked to ensure compliance with this provision?

There are two simple ways of testing a web page to determine if this requirement is being met: by either viewing the page on a black and white monitor, or by printing it out on a black and white printer. Both methods will quickly show if the removal of color affects the usability of the page.

Back

(d) Documents shall be organized so they are readable without requiring an associated style sheet.

What are the potential problems posed by style sheets?

Style sheets can enable users to define specific viewing preferences to accommodate their disability. For instance, users with low vision may create their own style sheet so that, regardless of what web pages they visit, all text is displayed in an extra large font with white characters on a black background. If designers set up their pages to override user-defined style sheets, people with disabilities may not be able to use those pages. For good access, therefore, it is critical that designers ensure that their web pages do not interfere with user-defined style sheets.

In general, the "safest" and most useful form of style sheets are "external" style sheets, in which the style rules are set up in a separate file. An example of an external style sheet is:

Example of source code: `<link rel="stylesheet" type="text/css" href="section508.css"`

Back

(e) Redundant text links shall be provided for each active region of a server-side image map.

How do "image maps" work?

An "image map" is a picture (often an actual map) on a web page that provides different "links" to other web pages, depending on where a user clicks on the image. There are two basic types of image maps: "client-side image maps" and "server-side image maps." With client-side image maps, each "active region" in a picture can be assigned its own "link" (called a URL or Uniform Resource Locator) that specifies what web page to retrieve when a portion of the picture is selected. HTML allows each active region to have its own alternative text, just like a picture can have alternative text (see §1194.22(a)). By contrast, clicking on a location of a server-side image map only specifies the coordinates within the image when the mouse was depressed. The ultimate selection of the link or URL must be deciphered by the computer serving the web page.

Why is this provision necessary?

When a web page uses a server-side image map to present the user with a selection of options, browsers cannot indicate to the user the URL that will be followed when a region of the map is activated. Therefore, the redundant text link is necessary to provide access to the page for anyone not able to see or accurately click on the map.

Back

(f) Client-side image maps shall be provided instead of server-side image maps except where the regions cannot be defined with an available geometric shape.

Why do client-side image maps provide better accessibility?
Unlike server-side image maps, the client-side image map allow an author to assign text to each image map "hot spots." This feature means that someone using a screen reader can easily identify and activate regions of the map. An explanation of how these image maps are constructed will help clarify this issue.

Creating a basic client-side image map requires several steps:

- Identify an image for the map. First, an image must be used in a client-side image map. This image is identified using the `<img>` tag. To identify it as a map, use the "usemap" attribute.
- Use the `<MAP>` tag to "area" within the map. The `<MAP>` tag is a container tag that includes various `<AREA>` tags that are used to identify specific portions of the image.
- Use `<AREA>` tags to identify map regions. To identify regions within a map, simply use `<AREA>` tags within the `<MAP>` container tags. Making this client-side image map accessible is considerably easier to describe; simply include the "ALT" attribute and area description inside each `<AREA>` tag. The following HTML demonstrates how to make a client-side image map:

  ```html
  <img src="navbar.gif" border="0" usemap="#map">
  <map name="Map">
    <area shape="rect" coords="0,2,64,19" href="general.html" alt="Information about us">
    <area shape="rect" coords="65,2,166,20" href="jobs.html" alt="Job opportunities">
    <area shape="rect" coords="167,2,212,19" href="/faq.html" alt="Frequently Asked Questions">
    <area shape="rect" coords="214,2,318,21" href="/location.html" alt="How to find us">
    <area shape="rect" coords="319,2,399,23" href="/contact.html" alt="How to contact us">
  </map>
  ```

(g) Row and column headers shall be identified for data tables.

(h) Markup shall be used to associate data cells and header cells for data tables that have two or more logical levels of row or column headers.

Why are these two provisions necessary?

Paragraphs (g) and (h) permit the use of tables, but require that the tables be coded according to the rules of the markup language being used for creating tables. Large tables of data can be difficult to interpret if a person is using a non-visual means of accessing the web. Users of screen readers can easily get "lost" inside a table because it may be impossible to associate a particular cell that a screen reader is reading with the corresponding column headings and row names. For instance, assume that a salary table includes the salaries for federal employees by grade and step. Each row in the table may represent a grade scale and each column may represent a step. Thus, the finding the salary corresponding to grade 9, step 5 may involve finding the cell in the ninth row and the fifth column. For a salary chart of 15 grade scales and 10 steps, the table will have at least 150 cells. Without a method to associate the headings with each cell, it is easy to imagine the difficulty a user of assistive technology may encounter with the table.

Section 1194.22 (g) and (h) state that when information is displayed in a table format, the information shall be laid out using appropriate table tags as opposed to using a preformatted table in association with the "<pre>" tag. Web authors are also required to use one of several methods to provide an association between a header and its related information.

How can HTML tables be made readable with assistive technology?

Using the "Scope" Attribute in Tables - Using the "scope" attribute is one of the most effective ways of making HTML compliant with these requirements. It is also the simplest method to implement. The scope attribute also works with some (but not all) assistive technology in tables that use "colspan" or Using the Scope Attribute - The first row of each table should include column headings. Typically, these column headings are inserted in <TH> tags, although <TD> tags can also be used. These tags at the top of each column should include the following attribute:

```html
scope="col"
```

By doing this simple step, the text in that cell becomes associated with every cell in that column. Unlike using other approaches (notably "id" and "headers") there is no need to include special attributes in each cell of the table. Similarly, the first column of every table should include information identifying information about each row in the table. Each of the cells in that first column are created by either <TH> or <TD> tags. Include the following attribute in these cells:

```html
scope="row"
```

By simply adding this attribute, the text in that cell becomes associated with every cell in that row. While this technique dramatically improves the usability of a web page, using the scope attribute does not appear to interfere in any way with browsers that do not support the attribute.

Example of source code - the following simple table summarizes the work schedule of three employees and demonstrates these principles.

```html
<table>
<tr>
<th>&nbsp;</th>
<tr>
<td scope="row">Betty</td> <td>9-5</td> <td>10-6</td> <td>8-4</td> <td>7-3</td> </tr>
<tr>
<td scope="row">Wilma</td> <td>10-6</td> <td>9-5</td> <td>9-5</td> </tr>
<tr>
<td scope="row">Fred</td> <td>10-6</td> <td>10-6</td> <td>10-6</td> </tr>
</table>
```

This table would be displayed as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Spring</th>
<th>Summer</th>
<th>Autumn</th>
<th>Winter</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Betty</td>
<td>9-5</td>
<td>10-6</td>
<td>8-4</td>
<td>7-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wilma</td>
<td>10-6</td>
<td>10-6</td>
<td>9-5</td>
<td>9-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fred</td>
<td>10-6</td>
<td>10-6</td>
<td>10-6</td>
<td>10-6</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The efficiency of using the scope attribute becomes more apparent in much larger tables. For instance, if an agency used a table with 20 rows and 20 columns, there would be 400 data cells in the table. To make this table comply with this provision without using the scope attribute would require special coding in all 400 data cells, plus the 40 header and row cells. By contrast, using the scope attribute would only require special attributes in the 40 header and row cells.

Using the "ID" and "Headers" Attributes in Tables

Unlike using the "scope" attribute, using the "id" and "headers" attributes requires that every data cell in a table include special attributes for association. Although its usefulness for accessibility may have been diminished as browsers provide support for the "scope" attribute, the "id" and "headers" attributes are still very useful and provide a practical means of providing access in smaller tables.

The following table is much more complicated than the previous example and demonstrates the use of the "id" and "headers" attributes and then the scope attribute. Both methods provide a means of complying with the requirements for data tables in web pages. The table in this example includes the work schedules for two employees. Each employee has a morning and afternoon work schedule that varies depending on whether the employee is working in the winter or summer months. The "summer" and "winter" columns each span two columns labeled "morning" and "afternoon." Therefore, in each cell identifying the work schedule, the user needs to be told the employee's name (Fred or Wilma), the season (Summer or Winter), and the shift (morning or afternoon).

<table>
  <tr>
    <th colspan="2" id="winter" >Winter</th>
    <th colspan="2" id="summer" >Summer</th>
  </tr>
  <tr>
    <td id="am1">Morning</td>
    <td id="pm1">Afternoon</td>
    <td id="am2">Morning</td>
    <td id="pm2">Afternoon</td>
  </tr>
  <tr>
    <td id="wilma">Wilma</td>
    <td headers="wilma am1 winter" >9-11</td>
    <td headers="wilma pm1 winter" >12-6</td>
    <td headers="wilma am2 summer" >7-11</td>
    <td headers="wilma pm2 summer" >12-3</td>
  </tr>
  <tr>
    <td id="fred">Fred</td>
    <td headers="fred am1 winter" >10-11</td>
    <td headers="fred pm1 winter" >12-6</td>
    <td headers="fred am2 summer" >9-11</td>
    <td headers="fred pm2 summer" >12-5</td>
  </tr>
</table>

This table would be displayed as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Winter</th>
<th>Afternoon</th>
<th>Morning</th>
<th>Afternoon</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Wilma</td>
<td>9-11</td>
<td>12-6</td>
<td>7-11</td>
<td>12-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fred</td>
<td>10-11</td>
<td>12-6</td>
<td>9-11</td>
<td>12-5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Coding each cell of this table with "id" and "headers" attributes is much more complicated than using the "scope" attribute shown below:

```html
<table>
  <tr>
    <th colspan="2" scope="col" >Winter</th>
    <th colspan="2" scope="col" >Summer</th>
  </tr>
  <tr>
    <td scope="col">Morning</td>
    <td scope="col">Afternoon</td>
    <td scope="col">Morning</td>
    <td scope="col">Afternoon</td>
  </tr>
  <tr>
    <td scope="row">Wilma</td>
  </tr>
</table>
```
This table would be displayed as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Winter Morning</th>
<th>Winter Afternoon</th>
<th>Summer Morning</th>
<th>Summer Afternoon</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Wilma</td>
<td>9-11</td>
<td>12-6</td>
<td>7-11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fred</td>
<td>10-11</td>
<td>12-6</td>
<td>9-11</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Is the summary attribute an option?

Although highly recommended by some webpage designers as a way of summarizing the contents of a table, the "summary" attribute of the TABLE tag is not sufficiently supported by major assistive technology manufacturers to warrant recommendation. Therefore, web developers who are interested in summarizing their tables should consider placing their descriptions either adjacent to their tables or in the body of the table, using such tags as the CAPTION tag. In no event should web developers use summarizing tables as an alternative to making the contents of their tables compliant as described above.

(i) Frames shall be titled with text that facilitates frame identification and navigation.

Why is this provision necessary?

Frames provide a means of visually dividing the computer screen into distinct areas that can be separately rewritten. Unfortunately, frames can also present difficulties for users with disabilities when these frames are not easily identifiable to assistive technology. For instance, a popular use of frames is to create "navigational bars" in a fixed position on the screen and have the content of the web site retrievable by activating one of those navigational buttons. The new content is displayed another area of the screen. Because the navigational bar doesn't change, it provides a stable "frame-of-reference" for users and makes navigation much easier. However, users with disabilities may become lost if the differences between the two frames are not clearly established.

What is the best method for identifying frames?

The most obvious way to accomplish this requirement is to include text within the body of each frame that clearly identifies the frame. For instance, in the case of the navigation bar, a web developer should consider putting words such as "Navigational Links" at the beginning of the contents of the frame to let all users know that the frame depicts navigational links. Providing titles like this at the top of the contents of each frame will satisfy these requirements. An additional measure that should be considered by agencies is to include meaningful text in the <frame> tag's "title" attribute. Although not currently supported by major manufacturers of assistive technology, the "title" attribute is part of the HTML 4.0 specification and was intended to let web developers include a description of the frame as a quote-enclosed string. Demonstrating the use of the "title" attribute requires a basic understanding of how frames are constructed. When frames are used in a web page, the first page that is loaded must include a <frameset> tag that encloses the basic layout of the frames on the page. Within the <frameset> tag, <frame> tags specify the name, initial contents, and appearance of each separate frame. Thus, the following example uses the "title" attribute to label one frame "Navigational Links Frame" and the second frame "Contents Frame."

```html
<frameset cols="30%, 60%">
  <frame src="navlinks.html" name="navlinks" title="Navigational Links Frame">
  <frame src="geninfo.html" name="contents_page" title="Contents Frame">
</frameset>
```
While assistive technology does not yet widely support the "title" attribute, we recommend including this attribute in web pages using frames.

Example: ADA Technical Assistance Program - The use of frames with "No Frames Link"

Back

(J) Pages shall be designed to avoid causing the screen to flicker with a frequency greater than 2 Hz and lower than 55 Hz.

Why is this provision necessary?

This provision is necessary because some individuals with photosensitive epilepsy can have a seizure triggered by displays that flicker, flash, or blink, particularly if the flash has a high intensity and is within certain frequency ranges. The 2 Hz limit was chosen to be consistent with proposed revisions to the ADA Accessibility Guidelines which, in turn, are being harmonized with the International Code Council (ICC)/ANSI A117 standard, "Accessible and Usable Buildings and Facilities", ICC/A117.1-1998 which references a 2 Hz limit. An upper limit was identified at 55 Hz.

How can flashing or flickering elements be identified?

Flashing or flickering elements are usually added through technologies such as animated GIFs, Java applets, or third-party plug-ins or applications. Java applets and third party plug-ins can be identified by the presence of `<APPLET>` or `<OBJECT>` tags. Animated GIFs are images that download in a single file (like ordinary image files), but have content that changes over short periods of time. Like other images, however, they are usually incorporated through the use of the `<IMG>` tag.
(k) A text-only page, with equivalent information or functionality, shall be provided to make a web site comply with the provisions of these standards, when compliance cannot be accomplished in any other way. The content of the text-only page shall be updated whenever the primary page changes.

What must a text-only page contain to comply with this provision?

Text-only pages must contain equivalent information or functionality as the primary pages. Also, the text-only page shall be updated whenever the primary page changes.

HTML source code: `  Text Only  `

(i) When pages utilize scripting languages to display content, or to create interface elements, the information provided by the script shall be identified with functional text that can be read by assistive technology.

What accessibility problems can scripts cause?

Web page authors have a responsibility to provide script information in a fashion that can be read by assistive technology. When authors do not put functional text with a script, a screen reader will often read the content of the script itself in a meaningless jumble of numbers and letters. Although this jumble is text, it cannot be interpreted or used.

How can web developers comply with this provision?

Web developers working with JavaScript frequently use so-called JavaScript URL’s as an easy way to invoke JavaScript functions. Typically, this technique is used as part of `` anchor links. For instance, the following link invokes a JavaScript function called `myFunction`:

```
Start myFunction
```

This technique does not cause accessibility problems for assistive technology. A more difficult problem occurs when developers use images inside of JavaScript URL’s without providing meaningful information about the image or the effect of the anchor link. For instance, the following link also invokes the JavaScript function `myFunction`, but requires the user to click on an image instead of the text “Start myFunction”:

```
<img src="myFunction.gif">
```

This type of link, as written, presents tremendous accessibility problems, but those problems can easily be remedied. The `<img>` tag, of course, supports the "alt" attribute that can also be used to describe the image and the effect of clicking on the link. Thus, the following revision remedies the accessibility problems created in the previous example:

```
<img src="myFunction.gif" alt="picture link for starting myFunction">
```

Another technique advocated by some developers is to use the "title" attribute of the `` tag. For instance, the following example includes a meaningful description in a "title" attribute:

```
<title="this link starts myFunction" href="javascript:myFunction();"><img src="myFunction.gif">

This tag is supported by some but not all assistive technologies. Therefore, while it is part of the HTML 4.0 specifications, authors should use the "alt" tag in the enclosed image.

Finally, the browser’s status line (at the bottom of the screen) typically displays the URL of any links that the mouse is currently pointing towards. For instance, if clicking on an anchor link will send the user to http://www.usdoj.gov, that URL will be displayed in the status line if the user’s mouse lingers on top of the anchor link. In the case of JavaScript URL’s, the status line can become filled with meaningless snippets of script. To prevent this effect, some web developers use special "event handlers" such as `onmouseover` and `onmouseout` to overwrite the contents of the status line with a custom message. For instance, the following link will replace the content in the status line with a custom message "Nice Choice":

<a href="javascript:myFcn();" onmouseover="status='Nice Choice'; return true;"
onmouseout="status='';">\

This text rewritten into the status line is difficult or impossible to detect with a screen reader. Although rewriting the status line did not interfere with the accessibility or inaccessibility of the JavaScript URL, web developers should ensure that all important information conveyed in the status line is also provided through the "alt" attribute, as described above.

JavaScript uses so-called "event handlers" as a trigger for certain actions or functions to occur. For instance, a web developer may embed a JavaScript function in a web page that automatically checks the content of a form for completeness or accuracy. An event handler associated with a "submit" button can be used to trigger the function before the form is actually submitted to the server for processing. The advantage for the government agency is that it saves government resources by not requiring the government’s server to do the initial checking. The advantage for the computer user is that feedback about errors is almost instantaneous because the user is told about the error before the information is even submitted over the Internet.

Web developers must exercise some caution when deciding which event handlers to use in their web pages, because different screen readers provide different degrees of support for different event handlers. The following table includes recommendations for using many of the more popular event handlers:
- onClick – The onClick event handler is triggered when the user clicks once on a particular item. It is commonly used on links and button elements and, in connection with these elements, it works well with screen readers. If clicking on the element associated with the onClick event handler triggers a function or performs some other action, developers should ensure that the context makes that fact clear to all users. Do not use the onClick event handlers for form elements that include several options (e.g., select lists, radio buttons, checkboxes) unless absolutely necessary.
- onDbClick – The onDbClick event handler is set off when the user clicks twice rapidly on the same element. In addition to the accessibility problems it creates, it is very confusing to users and should be avoided.
- onMouseDown and onMouseUp – The onMouseDown and onMouseUp event handlers each handle the two halves of clicking a mouse while over an element – the process of (a) clicking down on the mouse button and (b) then releasing the mouse button. Like onDbClick, this tag should be used sparingly, if at all, by web developers because it is quite confusing. In most cases, developers should opt for the onDbClick event handler instead of onMouseDown.
- onMouseOver and onMouseOut – These two event handlers are very popular on many web sites. For instance, so-called rollover gif's, which swap images on a web page when the mouse passes over an image, typically use both of these event handlers. These event handlers neither can be accessed by the mouse nor interfere with accessibility – a screen reader simply bypasses them entirely. Accordingly, web designers who use these event handlers should be careful to duplicate the information (if any) provided by these event handlers through other means.
- onLoad and onUnload – Both of these event handlers are used frequently to perform certain functions when a web page has either completed loading or when it unloads. Because neither event handler is triggered by any user interaction with an element on the page, they do not present accessibility problems.
- onChange – This event handler is very commonly used for triggering JavaScript functions based on a selection from within a `<select>` tag. Surprisingly, it presents tremendous accessibility problems for many commonly used screen readers and should be avoided. Instead, web developers should use the onClick event handler (associated with a link or button that is adjacent to a `<select>` tag) to accomplish the same functions.
- onBlur and onFocus – These event handlers are not commonly used in web pages. While they don't necessarily present accessibility problems, their behavior is confusing enough to a web page visitor that they should be avoided.

Why is this provision necessary?

While most web browsers can easily read HTML and display it to the user, several private companies have developed proprietary file formats for transmitting and displaying special content, such as multimedia or very precisely defined documents. Because these file formats are proprietary, web browsers cannot ordinarily display them. To make it possible for these files to be viewed by web browsers, add-on programs or "plug-ins" can be downloaded and installed on the user's computer that will make it possible for their web browsers to display or play the content of the files. This provision requires that web pages that provide content such as Real Audio or PDF (Adobe Acrobat's Portable Document Format) files also provide a link to a plug-in that will meet the software provisions. It is very common for a web page to provide links to needed plug-ins. For example, web pages containing Real Audio almost always have a link to a source for the necessary player. This provision places a responsibility on the web page author to know that a compliant application exists, before requiring a plug-in.

How can plug-ins and applets be detected?

Plug-ins can usually be detected by examining a page's HTML for the presence of an `<OBJECT>` tag. Some plug-in manufacturers, however, may require the use of proprietary tags. Like plug-ins, applets can also be identified by the presence of an `<OBJECT>` tag in the HTML source for a web page. Also, an `<APPLET>` tag may also signal the inclusion of an applet in a web page.

(a) When electronic forms are designed to be completed on-line, the form shall allow people using assistive technology to access the information, field elements, and functionality required for completion and submission of the form, including all directions and cues.

Why do electronic forms present difficulties to screen readers?

Currently, the interaction between form controls and screen readers can be unpredictable, depending upon the design of the page containing these controls. HTML forms pose accessibility problems when web developers separate a form element from its associated label or title. For instance, if an input box is intended for receiving a user’s last name, the web developer must be careful that the words "last name" (or some similar text) appear near that input box or are somehow associated with it. Although this may seem like an obvious requirement, it is extremely easy to violate because the visual proximity of a form element and its title offers no guarantee that a screen reader will associate the two or that this association will be obvious to a user of assistive technology.

The following form demonstrates these problems. Visually, this form is part of a table and each field is carefully placed in table cells adjacent to the corresponding labels (n.b. formatting forms with tables are by no means the only situation presenting the accessibility problems inherent in forms; tables merely illustrate the problem most clearly).

While the relationship between the titles “First Name” or “Last Name” and their respective input boxes may be obvious from visual inspection, the relationship is not obvious to a screen reader. Instead, a screen reader may simply announce “input box” when encountering each input box. The reason for these difficulties is revealed from inspecting the HTML source for this table. The following code is a simplified version of this table.

```
<FORM>
<TABLE>
<TR>
<TD><B>First Name: </B></TD>
<TD><INPUT TYPE="TEXT" NAME="FIRSTNAME"> </TD>
</TR>
<TR>
<TD><B>Last Name: </B></TD>
<TD><INPUT TYPE="TEXT" NAME="LASTNAME"> </TD>
</TR>
</TABLE>
</FORM>
```

The two pairs of form elements are indicated in bold above. The problem created by laying out form elements inside of this table is now clear – the form elements are separated from their labels by the formatting instructions for the table.

How can developers provide accessible HTML forms?

The first rule of thumb is to place labels adjacent to input fields, not in separate cells of a table. For the web developer who does not wish to place form elements immediately adjacent to their corresponding titles, the HTML 4.0 specification includes the `<LABEL>` tag that lets web developers mark specific elements as “labels” and then associate a form element with that label. There are generally two ways to use the label tag: explicit labels and implicit labels.

"Explicit Labels” Work Well Experience has shown that explicit labeling works extremely well with all popular assistive technology.
and are recommended in all but the very simplest of tables. We recommend that all agencies ensure that their web developers are familiar with these important concepts. Using “explicit” labels involves two distinct steps:

- Use the `<LABEL>` Tag and Associated “FOR” Attribute to Tag Labels. In other words, identify the exact words that you want to use as the label for the form element and enclose those words in a `<LABEL>` tag. Use the “FOR” attribute to uniquely identify that element.
- Use the “ID” Attribute in the Associated Form Element. Every form element supports the “ID” attribute. By setting this attribute to the identifier used in the “FOR” attribute of the associated `<LABEL>` tag, you “tie” that form element to its associated label. For instance, we have rewritten the HTML code for our simple form-inside-a-table to include explicit labels below. The new HTML code for the explicit labels is indicated in bold:

```html
<form>
  <table>
    <tr>
      <td><label for="first">FIRST NAME:</label> </td>
      <td><input type="text" name="firstname" id="first" /></td>
    </tr>
    <tr>
      <td><label for="last">LAST NAME:</label> </td>
      <td><input type="text" name="lastname" id="last" /></td>
    </tr>
  </table>
  <input type="submit" value="Submit" />
</form>
```

In a nutshell, that’s all there is to making HTML form elements accessible to assistive technology. Experience has shown that this technique works extremely well in much more complicated and convoluted forms and it should work well in all agency HTML forms.

Avoid Using “Implicit Labels”

In “implicit” labels, the form element and its associated label are contained within an opening `<LABEL>` tag and a closing </LABEL> tag. For instance, in the table above, an implicit label to associate the words “First Name” with its associated input cell, we could use an implicit label as follows:

```html
<label>
  <tr>
    <td>FIRST NAME:</td>
    <td><input type="text" name="firstname" /></td>
  </tr>
</label>
```

Experience has shown that implicit labeling should be avoided for two reasons. First, implicit labeling is not reliably supported by many screen readers and, in particular, does not work well if explicit labels are simultaneously used anywhere on the same web page. Often, the output can be wildly inaccurate and confusing. Second, if any text separates a label from its associated form element, an implicit label becomes impractical and confusing because the label itself is no longer easily identified with the form element.

(o) A method shall be provided that permits users to skip repetitive navigation links.

Why do navigational links present impediments to screen readers and other types of assistive technologies?
This provision provides a method to facilitate the easy tracking of page content that provides users of assistive technology the option to skip repetitive navigation links. Web developers routinely place a host of routine navigational links at a standard location – often across the top, bottom, or side of a page. If a non-disabled user returns to a web page and knows that he or she wants to view the contents of that particular page instead of selecting a navigation link to go to another page, he or she may simply look past the links and begin reading wherever the desired text is located. For those who use screen readers or other types of assistive technologies, however, it can be a tedious and time-consuming chore to wait for the assistive technology to work through and announce each of the standard navigational links before getting to the intended location. In order to alleviate this problem, the section 508 rule requires that when repetitive navigational links are used, there must be a mechanism for users to skip repetitive navigational links.

Example: USDA Target Center and DOL websites use the Skip Repetitive Navigational Links.

When a timed response is required, the user shall be alerted and given sufficient time to indicate more time is required.

Why do timed responses present problems to web users with disabilities?

Web pages can be designed with scripts so that the web page disappears or "expires" if a response is not received within a specified amount of time. Sometimes, this technique is used for security reasons or to reduce the demands on the computer serving the web pages. Someone’s disability can have a direct impact on the speed with which he or she can read, move around, or fill in a web form. For instance, someone with extremely low vision may be a slower-than-average reader. A page may “time out” before he is able to finish reading it. Many forms, when they “time out” automatically, also delete whatever data has been entered. The result is that someone with a disability who is slow to enter data cannot complete the form. For this reason, when a timed response is required, the user shall be alerted via a prompt and given sufficient time to indicate whether additional time is needed.

Attachment 10 Grievance Procedure

Grievance Procedure

I. PURPOSE

This Grievance Procedure is established to meet the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 ("ADA"). It may be used by anyone who wishes to file a complaint alleging discrimination on the basis of disability in the provision of services, activities, programs, or benefits by Sedgwick County.

The Sedgwick County Personnel Policy 4.311 governs employment-related complaints of discrimination based on disability.

II. POLICY STATEMENT

Sedgwick County is committed to compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. The ADA establishes certain administrative responsibilities for local governments, including a formal ADA Grievance Procedure.
III. PROCEDURES

1. The complaint should be in writing and contain information about the alleged discrimination such as the name, address, phone number of complainant and the location, date, and description of the problem. Alternative means of filing complaints, such as personal interviews or a tape recording of the complaint will be made available for persons with disabilities upon request.

2. The complaint should be submitted by the grievant and/or his/her designee as soon as possible but no later than 60 calendar days after the alleged violation to:

   Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator
   510 N. Main, Suite 306, Wichita, Kansas 67203
   Phone: (316) 660-7052
   TDD (Kansas Relay at 711 or 800-766-3777)

3. Within 15 calendar days after receipt of the complaint, the County ADA Coordinator or his/her designee will meet with the complainant to discuss the complaint and the possible resolution.

4. Within 15 calendar days of the meeting, the County ADA Coordinator or his/her designee will respond in writing, and where appropriate, in a format accessible to the complainant, such as large print, Braille, or audio tape. The response will explain the position of Sedgwick County and offer options for substantive resolution of the complaint.

5. If the response by the County ADA Coordinator or his/her designee does not satisfactorily resolve the issue, the complainant and/or his/her designee may appeal the decision within 15 calendar days after receipt of the response to the Sedgwick County Manager.

6. Within 15 calendar days after receipt of the appeal, the County Manager will respond in writing, and where appropriate, in a format accessible to the complainant, with a final resolution of the complaint.

7. All written complaints received by the County ADA Coordinator or his designee, appeals to the County Manager, and responses from these two offices will be retained by the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator for a minimum of three years.

8. The right of a person to a prompt and equitable resolution of the complaint filed hereunder will not be impaired by the person’s pursuit of other remedies such as the filing of an ADA complaint with the responsible federal department or agency, such as the U.S. Department of Justice or the Kansas Human Rights Commission. Use of this grievance procedure is not a prerequisite to the pursuit of other remedies.

The purpose of the ADA Reasonable Modification Policy is to ensure equal and effective opportunities and access to County programs, services and activities for persons with disabilities and full compliance with the provisions of Title II of the ADA.

II. POLICY STATEMENT

Sedgwick County is committed to providing equal access and opportunity to qualified individuals with disabilities in all County programs and services. Sedgwick County recognizes that in order to have equally effective opportunities and benefits, individuals with disabilities may need reasonable modification to policies and procedures. Sedgwick County will adhere to all applicable federal and state laws, regulations and guidelines with respect to providing reasonable modifications, as necessary, to afford equal access to programs for persons with disabilities. Questions regarding reasonable modification and/or discrimination on the basis of disability should be directed to the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator. Contact information for the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator can be found on the County web site or by calling the Human Resources Department.

The County shall make reasonable modifications in policies, practices, or procedures when the modifications are necessary to avoid discrimination on the basis of disability, unless the County can demonstrate that making the modifications would fundamentally alter the nature of the service, program, or activity.

The County shall take appropriate steps to ensure that communication with applicants, participants, and members of the public with disabilities are as effective as communications with others. To this end, the County shall furnish upon request appropriate auxiliary aids and services where necessary to afford an individual with a disability an equal opportunity to participate in, and enjoy the benefits of, a service, program, or activity conducted by the County. In determining what type of auxiliary aid or service is necessary, the County shall give primary consideration to the requests of the individual with a disability.

Sedgwick County recognizes that providing services in an integrated setting through architectural barrier removal is the most desirable method to provide equally effective opportunities and benefits for many individuals with disabilities.

The County is not required to take any action that it can demonstrate would result in a fundamental alteration in the nature of a service, program, or activity, or any action that would result in undue financial or administrative burdens. Any determination that compliance with its responsibility to provide effective communication for individuals with disabilities would fundamentally alter the service, program, or activity or unduly burden the County shall be made by the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator or the Sedgwick County Internal Compliance Team after considering all resources available for use in funding and operating the program, service, or activity. The decision shall be accompanied by a written statement of the reasons for reaching that determination.

When barrier removal is "technically infeasible" or when reasonable modification would result in "undue financial or administrative burden" or "fundamental alteration in the nature of a service, program, or activity," the procedures in this policy will help ensure that Sedgwick County adheres to the requirements of the ADA regulations and guidelines with respect to burden and infeasibility.

III. DEFINITIONS

Qualified individual with a disability: is an individual with a disability who, with or without reasonable modifications to rules, policies, or practices, the removal of architectural, communication, or transportation barriers, or the provision of auxiliary aids and services, meets the essential eligibility requirements for the receipt of services or the participation in programs or activities provided by the County.

Reasonable Modification: Modifications or adjustments to a program, service or activity that will enable equal access, to the maximum extent possible, for qualified individuals with a disability.

Sedgwick County Internal Compliance Team (SCICT): A six member team consisting of the County ADA Coordinator, Director of HR, Director of Facilities, Employment Manager, Assistant County Counselor and a Finance Department Representative.

Auxiliary Aids and Services: "Auxiliary aids and services" includes:
(1) qualified interpreters, note takers, transcription services, written materials, assistive listening systems, and other effective methods for making aurally delivered materials available to individuals with hearing impairments,
(2) qualified readers, taped texts, audio recordings, Braille materials, large print materials, or other effective methods for making visually delivered materials available to individuals with visual impairments,
(3) acquisition or modification of equipment or devices, and
(4) other similar services and actions.

Technically Infeasible: With respect to an alteration of a building or a facility, is something that has little likelihood of being accomplished because existing structural conditions would require removing or altering a load-bearing member that is an essential part of the structural frame; or because other existing physical or site constraints prohibit modification or addition of elements, spaces, or features that are in full and strict compliance with the minimum requirements.

Undue Burden: Undue burden means significant difficulty or expense. In determining whether an action would result in an undue burden, an agency shall consider all agency resources available to the program or component for which the product is being developed, procured, maintained, or used.

IV. PROCEDURES

1. Sedgwick County will make all reasonable modifications to policies and programs to ensure that people with disabilities have an equal opportunity to enjoy all of its programs, services, and activities.
2. Anyone who requires an auxiliary aid or service for effective communication, or a modification of policies or procedures to participate in a program, service, or activity of Sedgwick County, should contact the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator, as soon as possible but no later than 48 hours before the scheduled event. Please include the name, location and date of the service or program, and your contact information. The request will be routed through the appropriate Departmental ADA Liaison.
3. Sedgwick County will generally, upon request, provide appropriate aids and services leading to effective communication for qualified persons with disabilities so they can participate equally in Sedgwick County’s programs, services, and activities, including qualified sign language interpreters, documents in Braille, and other ways of making information and communications accessible to people who have speech, hearing, or vision impairments. Requests for aids or services for effective communication should be directed to the County ADA Coordinator in the recommended timeframes as outlined below.

   b. Audio Tape: Audio tape recordings of printed materials will be provided upon request by Sedgwick County’s ADA Coordinator, in conjunction with the particular departmental ADA coordinator, with one week advance notice.
   c. Braille: Pamphlets, brochures, and printed information will be provided in Braille upon request by Sedgwick County’s ADA Coordinator, in conjunction with the particular departmental ADA Coordinator, with two weeks advance notice.
   d. Reader: A reader will be provided, when necessary by Sedgwick County’s ADA Coordinator, in conjunction with the particular departmental ADA Coordinator, upon request with one week advance notice.
   e. Aide: An aide will be provided upon request to qualified individuals with disabilities, by Sedgwick County’s ADA Coordinator, in conjunction with the particular departmental ADA Coordinator, to help ensure that printed materials are readily accessible to individuals with disabilities with a two-day advance notice. Example: Such aide may provide assistance to an individual in filling out an application.
f. Home Mailings: All printed information provided by Sedgwick County, which is typically available to the general public who visit County facilities, will also be mailed to individuals, where the individual’s disability prevents or circumvents the individual’s ability obtain the materials on-site at County facilities. Printed information will be mailed upon request by Sedgwick County’s ADA Coordinator, in conjunction with the particular departmental ADA Coordinator with a one week advance notice.

g. Large Print Format: Printed information that is available to the general public will be provided in large print, upon request, by Sedgwick County’s ADA Coordinator, in conjunction with the particular departmental ADA Coordinator, with two weeks advance notice.

h. Interpreter: It is the policy of Sedgwick County to provide an effective sign language interpreter in situations where the communication taking place is lengthy or complex; and/or other situations where a sign language interpreter may be necessary to effectively communicate with individuals who are deaf or hard of hearing. A sign language interpreter will be provided upon request with one week notice to Sedgwick County’s ADA Coordinator, in conjunction with the particular departmental ADA Coordinator.

i. Other Assistance: Sedgwick County will help ensure that all services, programs and activities are fully accessible to individuals with communication disabilities by providing auxiliary aides or services, where necessary, due to an eligible individual’s disability as defined by the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Note: Sedgwick County will make every attempt to provide the specific type of alternate format requested, however a different type of alternative format may be provided, if and when, such different type of alternative format provides equally effective communication.

4. In the provision of auxiliary aids or services, including modifications in policies, practices, or procedures; Sedgwick County will not place surcharges on individuals with disabilities to cover the costs involved in making programs accessible.

5. Sedgwick County facilities are either fully structurally accessible to individuals with disabilities or will be made fully accessible as described in the County’s ADA Transition Plan. Should any facility not be fully accessible, all services normally provided to the public at that location will be provided at a fully accessible location upon request.

6. Departments wishing to declare Technical Infeasibility, Undue Administrative or Financial Burden, or that a modification would fundamentally alter the nature of the service, program, or activity must follow this procedure:

   A. The Department Director or equivalent will submit a detailed written request for exemption, fully explaining the situation and stating the justification for exemption to the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator.

   B. The County ADA Coordinator will present all requests to the Sedgwick County Internal Compliance Team (SCICT) for review.

   C. The SCICT may:

      i. Request additional information from the Department Director

      ii. Reject the request and notify the Department Director of the decision

      iii. Tentatively approve and present the request to the Wichita Sedgwick County Access Advisory Board for comment

   D. After Wichita Sedgwick County Access Advisory Board review and comment, the SCICT, by a majority vote of the entire membership, may:

      i. Approve the request and notify the Department Director

      ii. Reject the request and notify the Department Director

      iii. Approve with modifications and notify the Department Director

   E. Documentation of all requests will remain on file in the ADA Coordinator’s office.

188
7. In alterations where the SCICT has determined that compliance with applicable requirements is technically infeasible or would result in undue administrative or financial burden, the alteration shall comply with the requirements to the maximum extent feasible, as determined by the SCICT.

8. The above policy and procedure is intended for events and circumstances where advance notice and scheduling is possible. In cases of emergency services, which are unplanned and may require complex and important communication, interpretation services consistent with the requirements of the ADA have been contracted by Sedgwick County to be available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

9. The County ADA Coordinator shall, in conjunction with the Sedgwick County Internal Compliance Team, coordinate the County’s efforts to comply with and carry out its responsibilities under Title II of the ADA, including investigation of any complaint communicated to it alleging its noncompliance or alleging any actions that are prohibited under the ADA. The County shall make available to all interested individuals the name, office address, telephone number, and Kansas Relay Number of the ADA Coordinator and shall adopt and publish procedures for the prompt and equitable resolution of complaints alleging any action that is prohibited under the ADA. Complaints that a program, service, or activity of Sedgwick County is not accessible to persons with disabilities should be directed to the Sedgwick County ADA Coordinator, and may be filed using Sedgwick County’s ADA Grievance Procedure.

Sedgwick County
Downtown County Complex Parking Proposal

Presented To The
Wichita Sedgwick County Access Advisory Board
April 25th, 2007

o Six additional accessible spaces will be added to the public parking garage. The spaces will be dispersed among the lower three floors, and all will be close to elevators or exits. The garage will not be re-striped; spaces adjacent to existing access aisles will be converted to accessible spaces.

o Six additional spaces will be reserved in the County employee only parking garage for disabled county workers.

o Draft language for employee parking contained in the new Human Resources Reasonable Accommodation Policy:

Employee Parking:

• When employee parking is made available in County owned parking facilities, each employee with a valid disability placard or tag will be assigned a reserved parking space.

  Note: Reserved accessible parking is provided to employees with disabilities upon request as part of the reasonable accommodation process as defined by the Americans with Disabilities Act. Employees who have valid placards or tags, but do not request reasonable accommodation or accessible parking, will not be assigned reserved parking.

• Reserved spaces will be marked “Reserved,” labeled with the employee's County parking permit number, and spaces will be accessible to the extent required by a particular employee.

• The location and configuration of reserved spaces will be determined by the County ADA Coordinator, based first on medical necessity, and then management level and finally seniority.

• The following designated accessible parking spaces are dedicated for use by the general public only. No employee parking will be allowed in the accessible parking provided in these locations:
  o Main Street, in front of the New Courthouse
  o Surface lot east of the Munger building

• Reserved parking will be reviewed by the County ADA Coordinator annually.
  o Parking on Elm Street will be converted to permit only parking for employees with disabilities who are ambulatory or law enforcement. Conversion will begin as soon as additional spaces in garage are signed.
  o ADA coordinator will arrange reserved parking for employees with disabilities as reasonable accommodation, beginning as soon as additional spaces in garage are complete.
SELF-EVALUATION AND TRANSITION PLAN COMMENTS
DATE: August 27, 2008

The following are comments and suggestions regarding accessibility issues that were received during the ADA public hearings. The following modifications to the Self-Evaluation and Transition Plan were presented to the Wichita/Sedgwick County Access Advisory Board on August 27, 2008. At this meeting, the board voted unanimously to support and approve the Self-Evaluation and Transition Plan as amended.

COMMENTS RECEIVED DURING PUBLIC HEARINGS (7/9/08 – Two Hearings)

1. Timeframe for the Transition Plan: During the public hearing, a citizen commented that a 20 year plan seems very long. Kent Johnson explained that the time frame and priority system he has recommended is typical of what he recommends for other counties and municipalities. Severe barriers are given a high priority and corrected quickly. Low (10 year) and very low (20 year) barriers are typically in facilities that are seldom used by the public or where there might be similar types of programs or activities where one is held in a highly accessible building.
   - COUNTY RESPONSE: We have discussed the time frame with the County Manager, and he supports changing to a 10 year time frame. The only exception would be the few items that Kent Johnson identified as very, very low priority, which would be corrected with the next major alteration.

2. Exterior Doors at Sedgwick County Extension Center: A citizen explained that the exterior doors at the Extension Center are heavy. He suggested that automatic door openers would make it easier for people that have limited mobility in the upper part of the body.
   - COUNTY RESPONSE: The Transition Plan recommended automatic doors to be installed as a medium priority (5 years). We propose to change this to a very high priority that would be corrected during the first year of the transition plan (2009).

3. Accessible Fishing Docks: A citizen explained that the accessible fishing docks at County lakes are not accessible to people that use wheelchairs.
   - COUNTY RESPONSE: At least one fishing dock will be made accessible as a very high priority to be corrected during the first year of the transition plan (2009). Additional fishing docks will be made accessible as high and medium priorities.

4. Court Communications for People who are Deaf or Hard of Hearing: A citizen explained his experience in the District and County Court systems. He suggested a program to educate Judges and their assistants about the importance of the ADA regulations pertaining to disabilities, especially people who are hard of hearing. He also suggested a plan to put a monitor in every courtroom for real time interpretation so that everything that the Court Reporter is typing can be seen on the monitor.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: The County ADA Coordinator, Lindsey Mahoney, met with Ellen House, Court Administrator for the District Courts. Ellen confirmed that the Courts now have real time transcription available in every courtroom upon request. It is not a monitor mounted on the wall, but a monitor that is provided to each person who requests this service. Additionally, the County will also designate an ADA Liaison from the courts who will receive all emails, training, and other information from the ADA Coordinator, as well as offer all ADA trainings to District Court and County Court employees.

5. Court Communications for People who are Deaf or Hard of Hearing: Another citizen who is hard of hearing explained his experience in the District Court where he could not hear the court proceedings.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: See item number 4 above.

6. Telephones for individuals who are deaf and hard of hearing: A citizen emailed that providing an accessible telephone in the County Courthouse should be a very high priority. She suggested a phone that would have TTY, video phone, and voice phone so that it would be accessible to all.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: The County Telecom, IT, and Purchasing departments are currently investigating options to provide this service. The county will provide as a very high priority (2009) a combined phone/video phone/TTY or a video phone and TTY (to supplement to existing voice phone) at the County Courthouse.

7. Braille Signage: A citizen submitted a letter explaining an area of concern relating to the timing for implementation of recommendations to provide Braille signage in several facilities. On a priority scale of 1, 5, 10 and 20 years, the Transition Plan often placed signage into the 10 year category. It was suggested that such an important item for the blind and visually impaired community should be given a higher priority, especially given the low cost of performing the corrections.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: The Transition Plan will be modified so that accessible signage is provided as a very high (1 year) and high (3 year) priority.

8. Accessible Voting: A citizen submitted a letter stating that the County has failed to take the credit it has earned related to accessible voting. The election commission has made voting for all citizens with disabilities a reality and has particularly made notable efforts for and with the blind and visually impaired community. However, there is virtually no note of these accomplishments in the plan.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: The Election office will provide a description of all ADA activities and improvements that have taken place to date. This summary of work already accomplished will be added as part of the Self-Evaluation.
9. Juvenile Court and District Attorney Complex: It was stated that at the new Juvenile Court and District Attorney Complex, vehicles parking in the accessible parking can pull up such that they could block the accessible route along the adjacent sidewalk. It was suggested that stop blocks, or another similar method, be installed to prevent vehicles from pulling up so far.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: The floor plans for this facility were reviewed, and the contractor failed to install the wheel stops that were required by the floor plans. The contractor has been contacted and has ordered the stop blocks. They indicated that they will be installed by the end of next week.

10. Emergency Management Emails: It was stated that the emergency management emails from Rick Shellenbarger (providing updates about potential inclement weather events) are really helpful because they allow people to get the information much faster than on television. It was asked if others could be added to this distribution list.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: Rick Shellenbarger confirmed that individuals can be added to this list if they email him at rshellen@sedgwick.gov.

11. Tornado Warnings: The difficulties of notifying people who are deaf about tornado warnings (since they cannot hear the sirens) was expressed. Chris Caldarella described one of his friends who had a tornado right near his house, but was not alerted of the tornado warning because he could not hear the sirens. It was suggested that for any product (pager, weather radio with light or vibrate features) to be available, it must be affordable. It was also suggested that a subcommittee of the WSCAAB be formed to make recommendations on this subject.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: The County representatives from Emergency Management will meet with the WSCAAB’s Emergency Communications subcommittee to begin a dialog about this issue.

12. Coliseum Parking: After the meeting, Nick Taylor described that accessible parking at the Coliseum is often difficult because a large number of contract employees, who get there early, fill up much of the accessible parking. He suggested that an employee parking program, similar to that at the Main Courthouse, might help.

- COUNTY RESPONSE: Some additional accessible parking spaces will be added as recommended by the Transition Plan. The ADA Coordinator will also meet with Coliseum staff to determine the best resolution for this issue, which may involve an employee/vendor parking program or similar efforts.
