WICHITA, KAN. — A man who attacked another man on his wedding day has been sentenced. District Court Judge Stephen Ternes sentenced Oliver Bradwell, 23 of Wichita, to 45 months in prison.

On the evening of August 17, 2014, while still in their wedding clothes, Mr. and Mrs. Omar Galaviz-Hernandez were eating at the International House of Pancakes on east Kellogg. Bradwell and 3 friends were sitting at a nearby table. Bradwell dropped an ID on the floor and Mrs. Galaviz-Hernandez picked it up to give back to Bradwell.

Bradwell made a derogatory comment toward the woman. The woman's husband overheard the comment and asked Bradwell to "show some respect." Bradwell stood up and struck the victim, causing him to fall hitting his head on the floor. Galaviz-Hernandez woke up at Via Christi-St. Francis Medical Center where he received 5 stitches to his lip and 3 staples to the back of his head.

Police looked at the restaurant security video and recognized Oliver Bradwell, a documented gang member, as the man who struck Galaviz-Hernandez in the unprovoked attack.

On September 4, Bradwell pled guilty to one count of aggravated battery. Judge Ternes sentenced him on October 21st. As part of 36 months post release supervision, Bradwell was ordered to pay over $12,600 in restitution.
