WICHITA, KAN. – A man was given eight life sentences without the possibility of parole for sexually assaulting underage girls. Terrill Andrews, 41 of Wichita, was a registered sex offender in 2013 when he sexually assaulted three girls, 13, 14 and 16 years old. Two of the girls were runaways from a Wichita halfway house.

District Court Judge Jeffrey Goering sentenced Andrews today on 3 counts of rape, 3 counts of aggravated indecent liberties with a child and 2 counts of sexual exploitation of a child. Judge Goering ordered two of the life sentences to run consecutively.

Before the 2013 crimes were committed, Andrews was convicted of two counts of sexual intercourse with a minor in California. While in the Navy he was court-martialed for rape and sodomy.
